

City Will Soon Feel Effects of Gasoline Crisis When Bids Are Sought

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The effects of the gasoline crisis will be felt soon by the city when it advertises for gasoline bids.

The City Council can expect to pay at least six cents a gallon more for diesel fuel and gasoline. However, it still remains to be seen whether any gasoline wholesalers will even bid for a new contract.

Sedalia's present contract with Oakwood Oil Co., West Highway 50, expires June 30. The contract calls for the city to purchase gas at 12.6 cents a gallon (excluding federal and state taxes) and diesel fuel at 12.25 cents a gallon.

But those are last year's prices and the cost of fuel has risen drastically in recent months.

"At those prices," says Oakwood Co. manager Ray Warden,

"I'm losing money. Gas is costing me as much as 15½ to 17 cents a gallon now."

In February Warden was awarded Pettis County's gasoline and diesel fuel contracts. The county didn't have much choice but to accept the terms of the Oakwood Co. Warden was the only bidder.

The contract calls for Warden to supply gas at 16½ cents a gallon and diesel fuel at 16 cents a gallon. However, the contract stipulates, "Prices excluding all state and federal taxes... shall increase or decrease in the same amount as sellers charge...."

In other words, the county — and not the Oakwood Co. — will pay for any price rises.

Since the contract was awarded, Warden says he already has had to increase the county's prices for diesel fuel by 2½ cents. "And gas also will probably be raised 2 cents soon," he says.

Warden says he still doesn't know if he will submit a bid to the city. "I haven't made up my mind yet. It all depends on what my gas situation is."

Like most wholesalers in the area, Warden has been allotted only as much gas as he distributed last year. This means that if the demand in the next two months is significantly higher than a year ago at this time, Warden may not have enough gas to supply the demands of the city.

"A lot of people think that it (gasoline shortage) is not that serious. But this isn't the case," Warden says.

Warden says any gas contract the city obtains will be similar to the county contract, under which the buyer pays for the increased costs charged the wholesalers by fuel refineries.

Warden was just one of many gasoline suppliers who was bound to the prices of a pre-crisis contract. Because he doesn't like to lose money, Warden recently asked the City Council to pay him an addition 4 cents per gallon for diesel fuel. The council took no formal action at last Monday's meeting.

Another firm which was caught in the midst of a contract in lieu of spiraling gas prices was School Transportation Inc. (STI) of Kansas City. The company has the present busing contract with the Sedalia public school system.

Terry Crabtree, STI spokesman, says the company, which has two years to go on a three-year contract with the Board of Education, is now allowed to raise its price by more than 5 per cent each year.

Crabtree says that even though gas prices may increase by as much as 3 to 8 cents a gallon in June, his company would only be allowed to raise its rate as specified in the contract.

"Naturally we would like to make the same profit," says Crabtree. "But I can't see us renegotiating a new contract with the school board when we're obligated to it for two more years.

"We're just going to take a wait-and-see attitude. We may have to increase efficiency elsewhere. I really don't know what is going to happen," he said.

Government Intervention Urged To Protect Missouri Farmers

In protest over the alleged allocation policies of two major gasoline distributors, Missouri Farm Bureau president C. R. Johnston Thursday urged government intervention to protect farmers from the fuel shortage.

In a telegram to President Nixon, Johnston said, "We think it is imperative that you act immediately to require distributors to furnish the same amount of gasoline and diesel fuel to their farmer patrons that was delivered in 1972."

The telegrams were prompted, according to Johnston, when "two local distributors of Texaco and Standard gasoline and diesel fuel in Missouri notified their farmer patrons that there will be very little, if any, farm deliveries this year because of heavy investments by these distributors in filling stations. The majority of their gasoline will be sold through these stations."

Spokesmen for Texaco and Standard distributors in Sedalia Friday said neither had restricted gasoline allocations to farm patrons.

"There have been no farm cutbacks," a spokesman for Oakwood (Texaco) Oil Co., West Highway 50, said. "We haven't been able to add any new customers of any kind, but we've been able to serve all our present customers."

Bob Uttley, manager of public affairs for Standard Oil Co. in Kansas City, denied Friday that any Standard distributors have been denying farmers gasoline.

"It's a completely false statement," Uttley said of Johnston's allegation. "Fuel for farms and home heating are top priority."

A spokesman for the local Standard distributor said no farmers have been cut back. "I don't know any customer who has been cut short," he said.

Both the Standard and Texaco distributors here have been allotted only as much gasoline as they used last year. Johnston said if President Nixon does not issue an executive order requiring distributors to furnish the same fuel needs to farm patrons as in 1972, "farm production will be in double jeopardy because of the lateness of the season, caused by flooding and heavy rains."

Telegrams urging emergency legislation also were sent to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, Sens. Eagleton and Symington, and Missouri's Congressmen.

New Fire Truck

Firemen and passersby look over the new 1,000 gallon diesel pumper recently obtained by the Sedalia fire department. The truck was driven to Sedalia by fire chief Willis Jabas and driver Joe Cable from the Seagraves Fire Apparatus Corp. in Clintonville, Wisc. The truck, costing nearly $41,000, arrived Friday morning.

McCord Claims Assurances Mitchell Approved Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. McCord Jr. has testified under oath that he never would have participated in the Watergate operation without assurances that Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had approved it.

McCord also swore that fellow convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy told him Mitchell received logs of wiretapped conversations while President Nixon's campaign chairman, after he quit as attorney general.

McCord said Liddy had told him Mitchell urged the wiretappers to get started in mid-April 1972, and later prodded the bugging crew to make its second entry into Democratic headquarters on June 17, when five of them were arrested.

Mitchell told newsmen in New York today he had not seen the McCord deposition. He did not comment further.

McCord's testimony, given April 30 and May 1 in connection with the Democratic party's lawsuit against the Nixon campaign for $6.4 million in damages from the Watergate raid, was made public Thursday.

Although much of what McCord said was reported second-hand before, the 383-page transcript of his testimony is his first sworn statement officially made public.

There were other developments in the Watergate case Thursday:

—Ousted presidential Counsel John W. Dean III issued a statement saying unnamed persons are trying to "get" him and limit his testimony about White House involvement in the wiretapping of Democratic headquarters and the subsequent coverup.

—Elliott L. Richardson testified at Senate hearings on his nomination to be attorney general that he feels "betrayed" by the shoddy standard of morals of those whose activities have recently come to light in the affair. He promised a broad and independent investigation.

—Florida investigators said Felipe DeDiego, a Cuban exile, told them how he and convicted Watergate conspirators Eugenio Martinez and Bernard L. Barker broke into the office of a Los Angeles psychiatrist and photographed files.

Dade County State Atty. Richard Gerstein quoted DeDiego as saying he was unsure whether a file on Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg was among those photographed. Testimony at the Pentagon papers trial in Los Angeles indicated Ellsberg's file could not be found in Fielding's office.

—Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans were indicted in New York for conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government, obstructing justice and perjury in a case involving fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco and $200,000 he gave to the Nixon campaign last year.

In his deposition, McCord said Liddy had told him the wiretapping operation had been approved by Mitchell, Dean and former campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder.

ultimate responsibility for the investigation, but that the special prosecutor would have authority to bring out all the facts and initiate prosecutions.

He has given the Senate a veto over his choice and testified that he would like the Senate "to act as a partner" in making the selection.

He said that if the Senate does not approve his first choice he would make another.

In other congressional news:

—Former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark has told the House Internal Security Committee that a travel-ban bill is unconstitutional and based on a false assumption that Congress must give the president "still more unbridled power."

Freedom to travel, Clark said Thursday, "is essential to informed speech. America should encourage travel everywhere. Iron curtains do not good neighbors make."

The legislation was proposed in the aftermath of controversial trips to Hanoi last year by Clark and actress Jane Fonda and was endorsed Wednesday by five former prisoners of war.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. designate Elliot L. Richardson says he hopes to have decided on a special Watergate prosecutor by Monday.

Richardson commented Thursday as the Senate Judiciary Committee recessed hearings on his nomination to the nation's top law post.

Several committee members have said they want to know who the prosecutor will be and what authority he will have before they act on Richardson's nomination.

The hearings were recessed until Monday while Richardson pressed his search. Richardson said he hopes by then to have decided on a person who is willing to accept the assignment.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, a committee member, said he hoped Richardson would appoint a Democrat as special prosecutor.

Richardson said he will ask the FBI to give top priority to running a check on the person and hopefully the check could be completed by the end of the week.

In two days of testimony, Richardson said that as attorney general he must have

Joplin Storm Kills Three; 90 Injured

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — A storm system that produced tornadoes and severe winds in southwest Missouri and southeast Kansas struck Joplin early today, killing at least three persons and injuring 90 others.

Tornado and high-wind damage and numerous injuries also were reported in Carthage, Webb City, Fidelity and Duane in Missouri and Parsons, Galena, St. Paul, Erie and other communities in southeast Kansas.

There was an unconfirmed report of an additional fatality at Galena, Kan.

The storm struck Joplin at 7 a.m. CDT, minutes after the city's tornado warning sirens sounded. Damage was reported massive throughout the city, with countless trees down, roofs torn away and windows smashed. There was heavy damage to mobile home parks in the city.

One fatality was recorded at Freeman Hospital at Joplin and two deaths were reported at St. John's Medical Center. St. John's earlier had listed three fatalities.

Robert Metzinger, Joplin city manager, said if the storm was a tornado, it didn't follow any path or line as tornadoes usually do. He said an aerial inspection would be made to attempt to trace a path.

In Kansas City, Allen Pearson, director of the weather service's Severe Storms Forecast Center, said on the basis of early reports the storm appeared to have been a type of tornado which usually occurs later in the year and farther to the north of this area.

He said it apparently traveled from northwest to southeast, rather than the traditional tornado path of southwest to northeast. Pearson said this type of tornado often has a swath a mile or more wide, rather than the customary one or two city blocks' width.

Emergency crews reported no section of Joplin appeared to have escaped damage. Downed trees blocked countless streets or rested atop houses or cars. Broken glass and debris choked streets throughout the city, slowing the work of rescue crews.

Telephone service was disrupted and electricity was scarce. The three Joplin area television stations and all area radio stations were off the air.

Joplin was struck by a tornado May 5, 1971, which killed one person, injured 60 and caused some $7 million in property damage.

The Missouri Highway Patrol asked the office of Gov. Christopher Bond at Jefferson City to dispatch National Guard troops to Joplin. Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps ordered the 203rd Engineer Battalion mobilized an hour and a half after the storm struck. Bond was in New York.

Phelps later was reported en route to Joplin.

All members of the police and fire departments, plus members of the Civil Defense organization, were pressed into service.

At St. Paul, Kan., Mrs. Lloyd Burr was injured when she and members of her family were trapped for about an hour in a home struck by two falling trees.

At least four persons were reported injured at St. Paul and two mobile homes were destroyed. Numerous residents reported seeing a funnel cloud.

Papers Trial Moves Into Entanglements

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon papers trial moves into new legal entanglements today following disclosures that Daniel Ellsberg was overheard by federal wiretappers whose records have vanished.

The FBI revealed the government researcher was heard on a wiretap up to two years before he released the Pentagon papers to the news media.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, demanding that the government answer to him today about the disappearance of 1969 and 1970 wiretap logs, also has told attorneys for both sides to be prepared for legal arguments on the wiretap issue.

The team of defense attorneys urged questioning of former Atty. Gen. John N.

The Kansas Highway Patrol said it had received additional injury reports from St. Paul, Riverton and Chanute, Kan.

The Kansas patrol said there were no confirmed fatalities in southeast Kansas from the storm.

The patrol dispatcher at Chanute said there were reports from St. Paul and Galena of a total of six injured.

Damage to utilities and power lines at St. Paul was reported at $20,000 to $30,000.

Thunderstorms, many of them severe, were reported through the southeast corner of Kansas during the night.

Border Post Is Shelled By Guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas from Syria shelled a border post in northern Lebanon today, but elsewhere along the frontier thousands of the guerrillas were moving back into Syria.

An army communiqué said the border post at Arida came under "an intensive attack by rockets and mortars" before dawn, and the Lebanese troops returned the fire. The army said the guerrillas withdrew into Syria, and there were no Lebanese casualties.

An army spokesman said the general withdrawal of the guerrillas who invaded from Syria during the fighting Tuesday between the army and the guerrillas based in Lebanon began Thursday from the Bekaa Valley. The valley was the scene of heavy fighting Wednesday and Thursday.

Only one incident was reported in Beirut. A taxicab ran over a mine near Aran University, killing two persons and wounding three others. Police sources said the guerrillas planted the mines during the fighting Tuesday.

As part of the peace agreement, joint army and guerrilla patrols fanned out over the country to help enforce the latest cease-fire agreed on Wednesday night. The guerrilla and army headquarters in Beirut were linked by a "hot line" telephone for instant consultations on any cease-fire violations, and a joint four-man high command was also set up.

Meanwhile, President Suleiman Franjeh was looking for a successor to Prime Minister Amin Hafez, who resigned on Tuesday after Franjeh ordered the air force to repel a guerrilla attack on the Beirut airport.

A military spokesman reported no fighting in the Bekaa Valley since early Thursday afternoon, and Beirut was quiet after only occasional sniping Thursday. The curfew in the capital was relaxed for five hours, bringing thousands of persons into the streets to buy food and other provisions.

Guard Could Not Believe What He Saw

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Walter Stogdill, a security guard at the St. Louis County Government Center here, said he rubbed his eyes in disbelief Thursday when he first saw a 25-year-old woman riding a bicycle around the complex — in the nude.

"At first I wasn't sure what I saw," said Stogdill, "but it looked like a naked girl with a sign on her back."

Stogdill's perception was totally correct. As it turned out, the nude woman, who was not identified, had ridden the bicycle about four miles from her St. Louis home before police stopped her in suburban Clayton.

The sign on her back read: "Don't arrest me. I'm en route to analysis."

Protestants To Vie For Leadership Posts

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Some new faces and some old ones are emerging these days in the bids for leadership posts in American Protestant denominations, with some sizzling battles shaping up.

As the year's round of church national conventions gets started, women may for the first time be elected to the highest titular posts as moderators of two major denominations.

Four big denominations—the Episcopal Church, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church Disciples of Christ—also face elections of their top ecclesiastical officers.

In at least one case, that of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, a showdown, with wide ramifications, is brewing over the choice of a president.

The incumbent, the Rev. Dr. J.A.O. Preus, a doctrinal conservative whose administration has investigated and criticized teachings at the church's main seminary, Concordia in St. Louis, is being challenged for the presidential office by avowed moderates.

However, one of the favorites for the race, the Rev. Dr. Oswald C.J. Hoffman, speaker on the widely broadcast weekly Lutheran Hour, has declined to accept nomination in advance of the July 6-13 convention in New Orleans.

"Many of our people are appalled and sickened by the political and theologically divisive atmosphere which has come to dominate a good deal of the thinking of our church," he said in refusing to enter the arena ahead of time.

However, the moderate point out he still may be nominated from the floor and that they also have three other candidates, acceptable to moderates, who already have been nominated to oppose Dr. Preus.

An old-timer on the religious scene, the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carlson Blake, 66, recently retired chief officer of the World Council of Churches and former chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church, now is seeking that church's top presiding office of moderator.

Having stepped down from his international position this year, he is among five candidates seeking the denominational post at the church's convention in Omaha, Neb. May 15-23.

The Episcopal churches faces the choice of a new presiding bishop to succeed the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, who has announced he is stepping down from the office after nearly a decade.

Various successors are being mentioned in speculation, including Bishops Christopher Keller of Little Rock, Ark.; James Montgomery of Chicago and John Burt of Cleveland, but a nominating committee has yet to recommend its choice.

The church, at its Oct. 1-11 convention in Louisville, Ky., also is to deal with a controversial question of whether to admit women to its priesthood.

The Christian Church (Disciples), over which the Rev. Dr. A. Dale Fiers of Indianapolis has presided as general minister and president for a decade, is to choose his successor at an Oct. 26-31 general assembly in Cincinnati.

A Texas regional executive of the denomination, the Rev. Dr. Kenneth L. Teagarden, has been recommended by the church's general board to become the new chief officer.

In the United Church, its president, the Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss, has been nominated for a second three-year term as the church's general synod June 22-26 in St. Louis.

However, that denomination also will elect a top, unsalaried officer, its moderator; and Superior Court Judge Margaret A. Haywood, of Washington, D.C., has been nominated for the post. If elected, she would be the first woman named to that office.

A woman attorney and life insurance executive, Dr. Jean Woolfolk, of Little Rock, Ark., has been nominated to the moderator's post in the Christian Church Disciples, which also has never before had a woman in that job.

Convention Turns Down Amnesty

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A resolution opposing legalized gambling was approved and a resolution favoring amnesty for conscientious objectors was defeated in a weekend convention of the Christian Church of Missouri.

By a 210-144 vote, the delegates rejected the resolution on amnesty, reversing a 12-5 decision of the church's state board.

The resolution called for amnesty for all men in legal jeopardy because of the Indochina war "except those convicted of acts of violence."

Other resolutions approved by the 400 delegates:

—Opposed any laws permitting lotteries in Missouri.

—Backed legislation increasing the amount of grants for aid to dependent children.

—Urged ratification of the proposed 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution providing equal rights for women.

Sedilians Join Tour Of Holy Land

Three Sedilians recently completed a 15-day tour of the Holy Land.

Joining 85 members of the Pentecostal Church of God in America on the tour were the Rev. L. W. Rowden, pastor of the Pentecostal Church of God at 24th and Ohio; Mrs. Olen Howard, 1507 Highway 750; and Mrs. Corbett Martin, 1524 East Sixth.

Their travels included stops in Paris, Cairo, Cyprus, Lebanon, Israel, Athens and Rome.

The group attended evangelistic services near Jerusalem which included baptism in the Jordan River and communion at the Empty Tomb.

Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Martin are members of the local Pentecostal church.

Record Winter Wheat Harvest Is Expected

WASHINGTON (AP)—This year's winter wheat harvest is expected to be a record 1,281,999 bushels, an 8 per cent increase over last year.

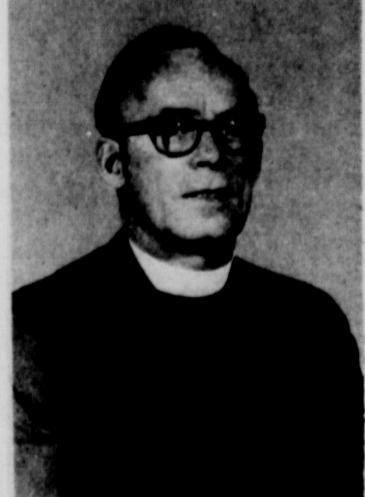

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the crop, planted last fall, also was estimated .3 per cent larger than projected last December in its initial report.

Because of record demand, including the Soviet Union wheat shipment, reserves have been depleted causing wheat to go to its highest price in 25 years. It was $2.38 a bushel in January, compared with $1.32 last summer.

Winter wheat does not bear directly on supermarket food prices but the new estimate, based on May 4 field conditions, lends support to a drive by the Nixon administration to increase food supplies this year.

But prospects for 1973 corn and soybeans, larger factors in the production of meat, milk and poultry, will not show up for several months.

Severe winter weather and a lag in spring field work have

Ozark Package Rejected

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Members of the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association soundly rejected an Ozark Air Lines contract and back-to-work package Thursday night, but leaders of the union said they were ready and willing to sit down with the company and resume negotiations.

A spokesman for the striking mechanics union said ratification votes taken in St. Louis and Chicago on Wednesday and Thursday resulted in rejection of the pact by a vote margin of four-to-one.

"We believe the large margin in the vote reflects the membership's confidence in the position taken by the union's negotiators," said Samuel Smith, president of Local 24 of the AMFA in St. Louis. The negotiators had recommended that the membership turn down the proposal.

The union said at one time that it and the company had reached a tentative agreement on the basic issue in the strike—wages—but that there was some dispute over a back-to-work proposal offered by the company.

The 560-member union struck the company 23 days ago, after six months of negotiations with the airline had broken off. The mechanics, who had been working without a contract during the negotiations, were seeking a larger increase than the company had offered, plus premium pay for mechanics who held air frame and power plant licenses.

The tentative agreement was reached after Ozark and the union met with federal mediators in Washington, D.C.

The strike has idled an estimated 950 million bushels in the year beginning July 1. If, as in this year, 800 million more bushels are consumed domestically, the total wheat crop this year could just about break even with demand.

Smith said Thursday night that the union was willing to resume talks with the company.

Storm Damage Survey Begun By ASCS Here

The Pettis County ASCS office is seeking area farmers to cooperate in providing information on the amount of damage done here in recent flooding. ASCS officials stressed they are not taking applications now for financial assistance.

The local office wishes to obtain as much information as it can by next Wednesday so that reports can be reviewed that day. Next Friday is the final deadline for filing the reports. The ASCS office, located at 310 South Lamine, will be open from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, according to Dick Dalton, county executive director for the ASCS.

The purpose of the survey, Dalton reported, "is to obtain a more accurate estimate of storm damage in Pettis County. Particular emphasis will be placed on damage done to cropland."

Farmers whose land has been damaged are asked to call or visit the ASCS office. They should be prepared to be specific about the type and extent of damage and should strive for an accurate estimate on their loss, the ASCS said.

Prepared For Rush Of Telephone Calls

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., is bracing for Sunday's annual onslaught of telephone calls on Mother's Day, according to Bob Johnson, manager.

The heaviest calling periods are between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and 7 and 10 p.m., he said. "A lot of people would be smart to call their mothers on Saturday. They'll get the same low weekend rates and avoid the Sunday rush. And their calls will stand a better chance of getting through quickly," he said.

Nationwide, the Bell system expects about 10.7 million interstate long distance calls Sunday. In Sedalia, 33 operators will be on duty to handle the anticipated 6,216 long distance calls here. Another 98,037 customer-dialed calls are also expected.

Sedalian Injured In Mishap

A motorcycle-automobile accident on South Limit Thursday resulted in the hospitalization of one Sedalia man, less than two hours after the occurrence of a one-car accident five miles south of Sedalia.

According to Sedalia police, the motorcycle mishap occurred when a 1969 Kawasaki motorcycle driven north on South Limit by Robert Schill, 23, 407 West 21st, collided with the rear of a 1969 Toyota driven north by Randy Kidwell, 2303 East Tenth. Police reports indicated the Kidwell vehicle was stopped waiting for southbound traffic to clear in order to complete his turn into Pat O'Connor Chevrolet, 1300 South Limit.

Schill, who suffered a broken left leg, was admitted to Bothwell Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

About 7:30 p.m. a 1960 Chevrolet owned by Roy J. Pottoroff, 30, Route 1, and driven south on Ingram Road by Clyde L. Litz, 19, 1001 South Missouri, went out of control and struck a tree.

According to the Highway patrol the vehicle skidded 240 feet before leaving the road. It traveled an additional 200 feet on the road striking a fence and trees on land owned by Robert L. Gooch, Route 1. Litz reportedly told the patrol the auto's accelerator pedal became stuck and the car went out of control.

Both Litz and Pottoroff were treated at Bothwell Hospital and released, according to a hospital spokesman.

Arrested For Role In Station Fight

Richard Boggs, 19, 108 East Cooper, was arrested by Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax Thursday and charged with assaulting a police officer.

The charge stems from an altercation at the police station Monday night in which Boggs allegedly assaulted patrolman John DeJarnette.

A police source told The Democrat-Capital DeJarnette was confronted Monday evening by baseball bat-wielding adults when he apprehended one of two juveniles suspected of breaking a car windshield. He was later confronted by the same group of adults at the police station, where a fight took place involving 10 persons, five of them policemen.

Boggs is free on $2,500 bond.

Valeria Louise Boggs and Michael Eugene Boggs, both of 108 East Cooper, were arrested by police Thursday on city warrants charging each with resisting arrest, obstructing a police officer in the line of duty and failure to obey a police officer. Both are free on $200 bond each. They were also reportedly involved in the fight at the station.

New President

Roy M. Maddux, left, Stover, was named president of the Missouri Association of Life Underwriters Friday morning during the organization's convention at Ramada Inn. About 200 Missouri insurance agents are expected to attend the session, which will include sales and profit-sharing seminars. John Hyatt, outgoing president, presented the gavel to Maddux during a meeting prior to an afternoon luncheon.

Viet Cong Apologize For Incident

SAIGON (AP) — Two helicopters forced down by antiaircraft fire in Communist-held territory near An Loc while carrying peace keeping delegates returned safely to Saigon today with an apology from the Viet Cong, a military spokesman reported.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, said 10 Viet Cong and South Vietnamese representatives of the two-party Joint Military Commission and eight South Vietnamese crewmen were unhurt.

The two helicopters were returning to Saigon from a liaison mission to the Communist-controlled district capital of Loc Ninh when the first copter drew antiaircraft fire, he reported.

The pilot, who was flying at 3,000 feet, descended so the ground troops could see the distinctive Joint Military Commission emblem on the copter, Hien added. But the firing continued and the pilot landed safely without being hit.

The pilot of the second helicopter, not knowing the circumstances of the first copter's landing, began circling overhead and Hien said it was hit in the tail section and landed near the first one.

The two downed copters were immediately surrounded by 100 Viet Cong troops, the Saigon command said, but when a Viet Cong liaison officer stepped out and explained the situation the troops dispersed. Local Viet Cong officials then authorized the copters to leave and guaranteed their safety.

Hien said the Viet Cong delegation apologized, blaming a lack of communications with local militiamen in the field. But he said he didn't believe the shooting was done by local militiamen because only regular Viet Cong units are equipped with antiaircraft guns.

A U.S. military team went to Hanoi during the day to visit the grave sites of 23 American POWs who died in North Vietnam. The team reported on return to Saigon that the remains of 20 of them had been transferred to a location 35 miles on the disposition of the Kansas cases.

The two local rape cases were reported to local police April 19 and May 31 last year. The first rape reportedly occurred in Sedalia and the other in rural Pettis County.

The alleged initial gravesites of 23 Americans were pointed out in six separate locations of the cemetery," the spokesman said. "The remains of all but three had been transferred, according to the North Vietnamese representative, in accordance with local tradition, to another location approximately 60 kilometers (35 miles) from Hanoi's Gia Lam Airport.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sen. William J. Cason says he's happy an open meeting bill has cleared a House committee, but he is concerned that it allows some votes by members of public bodies to remain secret.

Cason, Democrat of Clinton who is president pro tem of the Senate, sponsored the open meetings bill that was passed in the Senate but became stalled in the House Judiciary Committee.

The committee, headed by Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hanibal, held a secret session Wednesday night to discuss and finally approve a substitute version for the Senate bill. Reporters were asked to leave the meeting.

One section provides that when a roll call vote is taken, the votes for each member of a public body shall be made public.

Cason said that under this language, whenever voice votes are taken the public would not be able to determine who voted yes or no.

He said he hoped this would be changed when the bill goes to the House floor for debate and possible amendments.

Cason said he was also concerned that the House committee deleted a section of the Senate bill that allowed closed meetings only for purposes of discussion. He said many legislators favor closed executive sessions to discuss matters and some may vote against the bill because of this omission.

Derailment
Is Second
In Four Days

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Six cars of a Rock Island train derailed north of Liberty, Mo., Thursday, marking the second train derailment in the Kansas City area in four days.

One of two tracks was blocked by Thursday's derailment and a spokesman said it was hoped the line could be cleared Friday. He said five cars with grain bound for Houston derailed along with a caboose. No injuries were reported.

A Rock Island spokesman said Thursday that heavy rains which caused soft spots in the road bed were responsible for the derailment Monday of 12 cars of a train at Lee's Summit, Mo.

The railroad estimated damage in the Monday derailment at about $72,000. Crews worked through Thursday to reopen the single Rock Island track between Kansas City and St. Louis.

Ohio Twister Damage

This aerial view shows a trailer park almost destroyed by a tornado which swept through the southeastern edge of Willard, Ohio, Thursday. At least four persons in the community of 5,500 were reported killed and 100 injured. More than 30 tornadoes were reported in Ohio. (UPI)

Deadly Twister Strikes

WILLARD, Ohio (AP) — "First the roof started to go off, then the bed, then the mattress on the bed started to rise. There was glass flying all over the place," said John Agee, describing his motel room here as a tornado struck.

Agee, 29, a truck driver from Roanoke, Va., escaped with minor cuts and bruises, but four Ohioans were killed and about 100 others were injured as spring tornadoes raked the Midwest Thursday night.

Sheriffs' deputies said many persons in this north-central Ohio community were unaccounted for hours after a tornado flattened two 60-unit house trailer parks.

Deputy Sheriff Dick Fredritz said witnesses reported the twister performing a deadly dance—bouncing up and down in the air—moments before it struck the trailer parks.

"One guy told me kids were flying through the air," Fredritz said. "He thinks there are still kids in the fields. There are too many of them unaccounted for."

"I'm afraid we're going to find more bodies," said Deputy Sheriff H.H. Tappel.

Dozens of deadly funnels were sighted over Ohio. The National Weather Service reported 27 within one hour along 75 miles from Akron south over the place," said John Agee, describing his motel room here as a tornado struck.

tornado carried their pickup truck about 100 yards.

Three persons were killed in Willard and a woman died near Republic, Ohio, when a twister swept her car off a road.

Residents of flooded Portage Des Sioux, Mo., a Mississippi River town about 30 miles north of St. Louis, were looking forward to some relief today with the arrival of an 18-ton Army barge. Flood officials said the tank-carrying barge would be used to ferry people and supplies into the town, which has been surrounded by floodwater since April 26. A National Guard spokesman said the barge would supplement Army helicopter and Coast Guard boat supply lines that have kept the town of about 300 operating since it was flooded.

Rains Won't Affect Cresting of Rivers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National Weather Service said the Mississippi and Missouri rivers would crest out on time in the St. Louis area Saturday, in spite of locally heavy rains over some parts of the state in the past two days.

The Mississippi River, which had climbed back to 37.9 feet Thursday night, was expected to reach its fourth crest of the year Saturday, at a height of 38.5 feet at St. Louis. That figure is 8.5 feet over flood stage, but nearly five feet below the record 43.3 feet crest of April 28.

The Mississippi was reported to have dropped slightly at Quincy, Ill., but was holding steady at Hannibal, Mo., 20 miles south.

The weather service said the general trend for the area rivers after the weekend should be steadily downward.

Competition Is Tamed Key to Good Government

When the average voter stops caring, then government will become corrupt. Missouri's assistant director of revenue said in Sedalia Thursday.

Russ Sloan, in a talk before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club at the Bothwell Hotel, said the key to good government, as well as business, is competition. "I would hope that the Democratic party would keep right on top of the Republicans in Missouri," said Sloan. "There has got to be that check and balance."

In discussing state government, Sloan said the Bond administration discovered that "things had gone stale" in Jefferson City under 28 years of Democratic rule. "I am telling you, whether you are a Republican or a Democrat, that a change was necessary and was healthy," said Sloan.

He touched on problems in the Department of Revenue that have been uncovered, including a scandal in uncollected sales taxes that could reach between $100 million and $300 million, he said. Sloan said such activities were the result of sloppy performance by sales tax field men, but also involved kickbacks in some instances.

Sloan said he was not making a "blanket indictment" of the entire Department of Revenue under the previous administration. He said some illegal activities were the result of "corners being cut," and "obligations" being met that circumvented the law.

Jim Rice, program chairman, introduced Sloan.

The club was entertained by a musical duo consisting of Dave Turner, guitar, and Mrs. Carl Zimmerchied, vocalist, in recognition of National Music Week.

Bob Gardner inducted Lindy Wilson and Paul Edwards into the club, and Bill Giles, the Rev. Marvin Albright and Bill Mills were welcomed as transfer members.

Guests were Ron Jones, with Wendell Smith; Ken Romines, with Jim Rice; and Doug McLaughlin, Calabasas, Calif., with his grandfather, Ed McLaughlin.

Doug Kneibert gave the invocation.

Subsidy Payments Revealed

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WASHINGTON — A Pettis County resident and one firm were among 283 Missouri farmers and businesses who received subsidies of $20,000 or more last year from the federal government, it was revealed late Thursday.

The names of 18,000 farmers throughout the country who received the large subsidies were printed in the Congressional Record at the insistence of Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., who called the payments "nothing more than welfare for the wealthy."

Donald G. Callis, Route 3, received $21,068 and Olipharm Inc., was paid $21,304, it was reported. Other area payments include:

Cooper County — Knipp Bros., $20,497; Lafayette County — William R. Meyer, $21,151; Saline County — Eugene Elson, $50,179; Saline Co. Farms, $30,822; Rasse Bros., $26,282; William H. Bryan, $25,857; and John Stonner, $21,333.

The subsidy payments were made for curtailing production of cotton, wheat and feed grains, or for complying with conservation practices which take crop land out of production. There is a limit of $55,000 per farm, but a farm can get more than this if more than one crop is involved. The Congressional Record shows a Knipp Bros. entry for $20,497 in Cooper County and a Knipp Bros. entry for $29,509 in Moniteau County. In all, payments of $20,000 or more were made in 42 of Missouri's 114 counties.

Respect For Law Talk Topic

An address by Ed McKaskel, a security manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., highlighted the weekly meeting Tuesday of the Sedalia Noon Day Optimist Club at Bothwell Hotel.

McKaskel, a member of the Missouri, Mississippi and American Bar Associations as well as the Bar of the United States Supreme Court, spoke to the group on "Respect for Law." McKaskel is active in the Missouri Peace Officers Association, the Metropolitan Kansas City Police Chiefs Association, the American Society for Industrial Security and has served as chairman of the regional chapter of the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI.

State, county and local law enforcement officials attending the meeting as special guests included Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, sheriff's deputies Donald Stratton and Jim Lawson, State Highway Patrol Troopers Joe Dayringier and Curt Matthews, assistant Sedalia Police Chief Charles Knapp and Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming.

Club president Don Broadbudd presided at the meeting. McKaskel was introduced by Richard Lehmer.

Thompson said New Wine is responsible for upkeep, maintenance and all utilities at the school. New Wine sought the new quarters after receiving notice to vacate the old A & P building, which was sold.

The Democrat-Capital originally reported that New Wine had a 60-day option to buy the property. The board gave the Christian coffee house permission to use the school for $1 a year rent.

POW Group Recruiting Members

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The national commander of a group known as American Ex-Prisoners of War Inc., said Thursday the group is trying to recruit new members from the ranks of returned Vietnam POW's.

Harold L. Page, a Navy veteran from Buckley, Wash., who says he was imprisoned in Manila during World War II, is attending the convention of the American Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor.

Page said Thursday his group numbers about 4,100 members and is in its 27th year. He said the group will probably urge the Defense Department to revise the Code of Conduct for servicemen to allow POW's to give information to captors if the information is not detrimental to others.

He also said the group will urge the placement of an ex-POW on the Veterans Administration appeals board.

Polly's Pointers

A Can in a Can Aids Trash Man

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Inside my 20-gallon galvanized garbage can I keep a smaller plastic garbage pail that has handles on it. The collector can easily pick this up and my metal can stays in nice shape as no liquids go through to rust it out. I live in the south so put insect powder between these two cans. I think the men who collect the garbage appreciate not having to lift or reach into a heavy metal can. Thanks for all the Pointers. — BERNICE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have two problems. One is that a quantity of bath water softener I bought some time ago has become hard and packed together. Any suggestions for getting this back into granules? Also, while making candles I dropped a hot pad into the hot wax. I want to know a way to remove the wax from my hot pad without ruining it. — P. J.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those people who walk right into my house with muddy shoes when I have three throw rugs out front just for wiping their shoes on. After they get inside, some even rub the mud off on the rug I am trying to protect. This really irritates me.

I am a licensed baby sitter and have enough to do taking care of the children without having to clean up all that mud. I also resent those who drive oil-leaking cars in my driveway and leave puddles of oil and grease that I have to clean up or else have it tracked in the house. The house is close to the street so it is only a short walk to the front door. I am sure there are others like me who work hard and like a clean house, too. — E. B.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for May who wants to be able to reuse invisible zippers. I place such a zipper in a plastic bag with just the tab sticking out and then paint it the desired color. Either spray or brush paint work nicely. Nail polish can be used, if you have it in the needed color.

I want to thank you for publishing the Pointer about varnishing with old nylon hose. This works so well on small articles and the great thing is there is no brush to clean. — CAROL

DEAR POLLY — If you have a lightweight coat you would like to interline so it could be worn in cold weather, the simplest way to do it is to use a lightweight cardigan sweater as the lining. Use one that may be faded or not good enough to wear as a sweater but NEVER a bulky one. Cut the sweater sleeves off at the seam and open up the shoulder seam. Slip the sweater up between the garment and the lining and sew up, by hand, the shoulder seam. Open the sweater sleeves from the wrist to the underarm part. Work sleeve up between lining and garment and hand sew the seams that have been opened, to get the sweater in as an interlining. I have done this several times and it works great. The sweater can always be removed again when spring comes. — ELMA

(POLLY'S NOTE — I would also tack the sweater to the coat front, in a few spots, so it does not bunch up but hangs straight.)

DEAR POLLY — When packing for one of our camping trips, I fill the margarine containers I have saved, with our favorite breakfast cereals. The plastic covers keep the cereals dry and crisp and the containers serve double duty by being used as bowls. This is more economical than buying the packaged individual servings and, stacked up, they take no more space. — MRS. H. P.

Rap Brown Sentenced 5-10 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — One time black militant leader H. Rap Brown has been sentenced to five to 15 years in prison for his role in the 1971 armed robbery of a West Side Manhattan bar and an ensuing shootout with police.

Supreme Court Justice Arnold G. Fraiman, imposing the sentence Wednesday, told Brown:

"I'm taking into account that you have done much to help your people. You have devoted much of your life to helping your fellow man."

But the judge said he found "no relationship" between Brown's civil rights activities and the charges of robbery and assault on which he and three codefendants were convicted March 29.

"I am satisfied that your guilt was established overwhelmingly," Fraiman told Brown, 29, one-time chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

Two codefendants, Levi Valentine, 25, and Arthur Young, 26, both of St. Louis, were sentenced to five to 10 years.

Sentencing of the third codefendant, Samuel Petty, 24, also of St. Louis, was postponed to permit lawyers to produce new evidence.

Brown and the other three were convicted in an Oct. 16, 1971, holdup at the Red Carpet Lounge on West 85th Street in Manhattan. Brown was captured on a nearby apartment rooftop following a gun battle with police.

While the jury returned the guilty verdicts on robbery and assault charges, it deadlocked on a charge of attempting to murder a policeman.

Only 40 of Every 100 Pounds Make It to Meat Counter

By RICHARD J. OLIVE

Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Only 40 of every 100 pounds that come from the cattleman make it to the meat counter, but you're also paying for the other 60 pounds you'd never buy.

Donald Whittemore, 18 years in the meat business, pointed to the three large barrels filled with bone, lard and other wastes in the store's refrigerated area:

"We paid 74 and 75 cents a pound for that stuff" — meaning, of course, that the Kansas City area, five-store chain employing Whittemore must recover the cost.

Enter you, the consumer, costs recovered.

Whittemore swung a hook into a beef hind quarter weighing about 150 pounds. "Now for an idea of how much waste we've got on this," he said, picking up a long, sharp knife. He cut away the kidney suet, a huge piece of fat enveloping the fist-sized kidney, the only part of the piece fit for the meat counter.

The lard weighed 16 pounds.

Another rapid series of slices along the flank dropped another 16 pounds — 14 of it fat, two pounds of it rich, lean meat good only for ground beef because of its odd shape.

"Okay," Whittemore said, "that's 30 pounds before taking off the other waste on the quarter."

There is a market for those 30 pounds, but so insignificant, he said, "that we don't even weigh it."

About six barrels are picked up weekly by Standard Rendering Co., which now, "because of a bubble in the grease market," is paying four and one-half cents a pound for it, said A. E. Mills, manager. Before the recent wave of complaints over meat prices, retailers were generally receiving less than a cent a pound for the wastes.

The retailer — hence, the consumer — pays about $22 for the 30 pounds tossed into the barrel. It brings a return of less than $1.50.

As wholesale prices rise, so does the searing pain of paying for a side of beef less than half of which is edible. In recent weeks hind quarters — good sellers when the demand for steaks is high — are too costly for reasonable markups at 84 cents a pound wholesale.

So, at 74 cents, the retailer, like Whittemore's chain, purchases sides for about $225.

Whittemore said his chain shoots for 20 per cent markup. Operational and labor costs eat into the profit.

It takes time and imagination to gain that 20 per cent, he said.

"When there is less demand for the expensive cuts, the offal meats — kidneys, tongues, hearts — are up," he said. "Three or four months ago beef tongue was selling at 69 cents a pound. It was costing us 50 cents a pound before handling.

"Today it's 96½ cents wholesale."

"It's always been hard enough getting rid of kidneys at prices like 40 cents a pound six weeks ago. Two weeks ago they were 75 cents a pound. Now they are 63 cents."

Because of the high wholesale prices of these offal meats, Whittemore no longer orders them.

Moving along the meat counter, he paused at the "butterfly" pork chops selling at $2.09 per pound. "People who are having company like these because we've taken out the bones and they're a little fancier than the center cuts" — selling for 50 cents a pound less. "But if it weren't for the demand we'd never mess with them. If we can't sell the cut-aways as spareribs for 49 or 59 cents a pound, we're losing money."

It's all a delicate balance.

The price tag, before the freeze on meat prices particularly, quotes what the market will bear.

Some studies at Kansas State University have indicated the process in the retail store — including trimming, cutting, deboning and packaging — adds about 25 cents to each pound of meat.

For some of the larger chains, it is more economical to prepare the meat in central warehouses, then ship it to individual stores within the districts. This cuts down on the number of butchers needed in the stores and is a more efficient use of time.

Smaller chains and grocers compete effectively by dealing through co-operatives.

"Fifteen years ago I'd be talking with 15 different salesmen every day," Whittemore said. "Now the meat is delivered directly to us from the packing house and billed through Associated Grocers."

By making large orders for its membership, Associated Grocers makes sizable savings in meat purchases, which annually are divided among the stores it serves.

Such developments and the presence of the larger chains have virtually pushed the corner friendly grocer into oblivion.

"The small service grocer can't stand around anymore chattering with customers," Whittemore said. "It's not like that anymore. If he's not producing, he's not making money."

"We saved labor costs by purchasing $11,000 automatic wrapping machines (for the five stores) ..."

"Compared to a year ago our volume is the same dollar-wise but, of course, prices are much higher, so we're selling less meat. Still, I've had to add one 'floating' butcher (to help the 21, including Whittemore, already employed in the five stores) because it requires more help to put out the cheaper cuts of meat."

Whittemore's own recent promotion to meat supervisor of the chain was a cut in the operation's overhead. He retained his position as meat manager of one of the stores.

He will not be surprised to see stores' operations become even tighter because, in meat at least, he does not see people returning to "normal" buying habits.

"Everybody is now a bargain hunter. People with higher incomes are watching their meat purchases today the same as the poor people always have."

Starvation Possibility For Some

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The world's reserves of grain are reported so low that some areas may face starvation if the coming harvest is poor.

Stocks of wheat and other food grains no longer provide an adequate buffer against crop failure, the Food and Agriculture Organization told the Economic Committee of the U.N. Economic and Social Council on Wednesday.

As a result, FAO is drafting a "minimum world food security" program in which major consuming countries would share with grain-growing countries the responsibility for emergency stockpiling. Director-General Addeko H. Boerma is to unveil the program at the agency's annual meeting in Rome next month.

Ambassador I.A. Akbun of Pakistan said such a program would make maintenance of grain stocks a global responsibility instead of something left to the producing countries and market conditions.

In past years, needy countries have been able to count on huge surpluses in producing countries, mainly the United States and Canada, but FAO Asst. Director-General E.M. Ojala said these surpluses have now disappeared.

"The governments concerned have developed new techniques for adjusting production to demand," he told the economic committee.

He said that even if surpluses reappear, "they will be temporary and unpredictable as the world's central food reserve in moments of crisis."

Ojala said world wheat reserves are the lowest in 20 years, down to 28 million tons and only 23 per cent of estimated 1973-74 needs.

More Water Threatened

One of the first tasks that Dan Fronyberger started after the floodwaters of the Meramec River began receding was the cutting of the grass in his backyard. However, Fronyberger, who has only lived in his home 4 1/2 months, decided to leave the sandbags in place at the rear of his home in Arnold, until there is no more danger of spring flooding this year. The record flood has already cracked the basement floor in Fronyberger's home.

Carl RowanCIA role gives new twist to Watergate

The pre-film conversation turned to Watergate.

"This Watergate thing is so ridiculous that if you wrote it as fiction the publisher would laugh you out of his office," Cynthia said.

Helms laughed and, in the course of a brief discussion, dropped one comment that, as my close friends know, has bothered me ever since.

"Cynthia and I had been up late and had just fallen asleep when they telephoned me to tell me that these fellows had been arrested in the Watergate," he said.

"Why," I asked myself and my friends for months, "would anyone call the CIA director in the wee hours of the morning about some arrests in a burglary unless the CIA was involved?"

I remembered my own days as an agency head and knew that nobody calls you at 3 or 4 in the morning unless they have a colossal headache to lay on you.

But I just couldn't write about that remark. I couldn't prove CIA involvement in Watergate, and I didn't want to believe the CIA was involved in this kind of political crime. So the most I could bring myself to write was this, on Aug. 6, 1972:

"The previous employment of several of those involved in the 'Watergate caper' and recent strange revelations of big money floating into bank accounts out of nowhere have aroused some serious misgivings that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved. But for what reason? Not partisan political purposes surely."

I guess I wasn't cynical enough or mean enough to put my larger suspicions into print. I truly regret that bit of cautiousness.

Well, the chilling truth is now out. The CIA has become involved in political crime as ordered by the White House and that is a sinister development that overshadows everything else that has gushed forth from this cesspool we call Watergate.

E. Howard Hunt, the convicted Watergate burglar and ex-CIA agent (and who knows when if ever he became an "ex" agent?) has testified that the CIA provided cameras, disguises, false papers and other assistance when he and G. Gordon Liddy burglarized the office of the psychiatrist of Daniel Ellsberg, now on trial in connection with the Pentagon papers.

The New York Times has reported that the CIA role was approved by Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., Helms' deputy and now the Marine Corps commandant.

How can I interpret Helms' comment at that movie party in the light of these recent disclosures?

I can only conclude that the CIA was up to its armpits in the dirty work masterminded by Hunt and Liddy, in the Ellsberg case but also in the Watergate crime. I can only conclude that this vast organization with all its secret money, all its capacity for eavesdropping and other dirty tricks, was turned into an apparatus for perpetuating the power of Richard Nixon and his cronies.

And that stinks more of Nazi Germany than anything yet revealed in this sordid parade of criminality from the White House.

My hunch was right about why they called Helms in the wee hours. Those arrests at Watergate represented a serious peril to a CIA that had had a bundle of troubles in recent years and could scarcely afford to get caught playing dirty partisan politics.

One simply has to assume that the "technical assistance" the CIA gave Hunt for burglarizing the psychiatrist's office was also employed in the burglarizing of Democratic party headquarters.

You can bet that this kind of corruption of the purpose of the CIA was not taken lightly by Helms (and do not believe for a moment that Cushman approved this frightening gambit without Helms' knowledge). I can damn well guarantee you that the CIA became involved only on direct orders from the President, or orders from Haldeman or Ehrlichman, claiming to speak directly for the President.

In either case, no presidential assistants or appointees such as Helms would undertake so serious a violation of the intended role of the CIA without assurances of presidential knowledge and approval.

So that old campaign button finally speaks the truth: "NIXON'S THE ONE."

There is a question that hounds us all, and the answer is almost unspeakable except in private surroundings. When a President is riding the top of the world, hogging the glory and the headlines with re-election virtually assured, why resort to such malevolent police state tactics? It defies rational explanation.

There are some mental and emotional aberrations somewhere. The craving for power was affecting the judgment and stability of someone.

The question is whether that someone is among those who were fired or have resigned, or is it someone who still pulls the strings of national destiny?

Personal slantsRecitals and other tortures

By DOUG KNEIBERT

There are some things that are equal measures of pleasure and pain. I would place piano recitals in that category.

Why would a grown man sit with wet palms listening to his son play "Dance of the Elves"? Because he's been there before, and knows the terror that can grip your heart when you totally forget your piece in mid-measure.

Last Sunday there were prompters waiting in the wings with music to rush to the aid of those in need. But back when I was a piano student there were no crib sheets. If you forgot your piece, tough luck, Buster. You walked back to your seat in dead study of the pattern in the floor tiles.

I remember my first recital in the basement of the library. My number was "To a Wild Rose," which I had down pretty well. I was preceded on the program by Helen McCarthy, who was pretty cool. She also was somewhat ahead of me in musical prowess.

When her turn came, Helen stepped out in her formal and announced that she would play "Song of India," by Rimsky-Korsakov. She sat down, counted to 10 to herself, and sounded the opening notes.

Then I watched horrified as she struck a few dis cords and collapsed in tears on the keys. She had to be helped off the stage by Mrs. Knott.

That was the act I followed.

Somehow I got through "To a Wild Rose," mainly by playing it about twice as fast as it was written. But at that point all I was interested in was getting off that stage.

There were other recitals after that, until finally I worked up to the senior years. This brings me to Proposition No. 1 regarding recitals: The older you are, the worse you do.

Take my final recital, for instance. Here, by virtue of my longevity, I was one of the heavies who was saved for last. My number was Chopin's Military Polonaise, a bone-crusher that ran about 8 to 10 pages, as I recall.

Although I had a lot more distractions than when I was a fourth-grader, I had practiced diligently on the piece. Mrs. Carnahan was especially fond of it, and had picked it out especially for me.

When my time came I strode to the big old upright in the First Baptist Church and sat down. After a suitable dramatic pause, I dashed off the stirring opening chords of the polonaise.

Somewhere around the third page I blanked out, and jumped from there to the last page, omitting about six pages in the middle. I walked back to my seat amid polite applause.

I can still see that fixed smile on Mrs. Carnahan's face.

Today's thought

Be subject for the Lord's sake to every human institution, whether it be to the emperor as supreme, or to governors as sent by him to punish those who do wrong and to praise those who do right. For it is God's will that by doing right you should put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

The dog poisoner a special scoundrel

Of all the scoundrels in the world, your dog poisoner occupies a special category of contempt. He preys on dumb animals who have no reason to believe that the hamburger so willingly offered to them is laced with strichnine or some other deadly substance.

Sedalia has a dog poisoner at large. Already three animals in the area around the 400 block of South Grand are believed to have been victims of the poisoner. Two of the dogs have died from doses of strichnine.

investigate such instances of poisoning.

The odds are great, however, against catching a dog poisoner in the act, since he usually does his dirty work surreptitiously and does not wait around to see the results of his efforts.

However, the eyes and ears of the police can be greatly magnified if residents of the area are alert to any suspicious activity. Here Crime Alert can play an important role.

While nothing can excuse the dog poisoner, his work is made a lot easier by the large number of animals that chronically run loose in Sedalia. If dog and cat owners would exert control over their animals — especially in the area of their reproductive capacities — the city's animal control problems could be greatly reduced.

WASHINGTON — Rep. Burt Talcott, R-Calif., the dapper sportsman from Salinas, is fond of lecturing his fellow congressmen on the rules of dress and decorum he thinks should be observed on the House floor.

Yet he didn't mind violating the rules of decorum to wangle prizes and trophies for the First Annual Congressional Golf Tournament last September. As chairman of the outdoor frolic, he helped put the squeeze on Washington's lobbyists for a cornucopia of valuable gifts.

Talcott wasn't deterred at first by warnings that we might find out about the flood of sports equipment, TV sets, windbreakers, gift certificates and shiny merchandise that the lobbyists were donating. Rep. John Hunt, R-N.J., even warned in a personal memo to Talcott that playing the tournament in Washington might be "too risky. Remember Anderson."

We apologize for taking so long to dig out the details. We have now learned, however, that gifts poured in for the congressional golfers from the industries they are supposed to oversee — Abbott Labs, American Can, Celanese, Fairchild Industries, General Tire, Goodyear, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Japan Air Lines, Lockheed, Magnavox, Marriott Hotels, Northrop, Northwest Orient, Olin, Ralston Purina, Raytheon, Squibb and Uniroyal.

Generous gifts were also donated by trade organizations representing the textile makers, chicken raisers, cattlemen and broadcasters. Even American-Standard in New York provided two gaily decorated toilet seats for some deserving congressman.

Talcott left it largely to his prize chairman, Rep. Roger Zion, R-Ind., to collect the boodle. The amiable Zion mailed out a letter to some 200 lobbyists, soliciting prizes in language they couldn't refuse.

"You have a great opportunity to promote your product (or industry) to your elected Representatives," wrote Zion on official House stationery. He told the lobbyists that he hoped each of the 80 or 90 congressional duffers would "come home with a prize or two... Would you please find some suitable prize (or prizes) ... and send same to me at the above address."

Zion's office filled up with so many fancy prizes that Talcott began to get uneasy. Quietly, he called potential donors to urge them not to give any more and apologized to more scrupulous congressmen about the Zion letter.

Still, the gifts gushed in. Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala., wrung 11 windbreakers from the Russell Company. Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., notified Talcott he had come up with a set of woods from Ping Manufacturing.

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, reported he could wangle five golf bags from Wilson Sporting Goods if Talcott wanted them, although Mayne advised cautiously that "I personally don't think (it) would be a good idea" to let Wilson handle all sports prizes as Wilson had offered.

The hole-in-one chairman, Rep. John Rousset, R-Calif., after failing to get Ford to "volunteer" a one-year free lease on a Pinto, approached the National Auto Dealers Association. He was referred to a car rental firm where he got the promise of a free three-month lease. But none of the congressmen got a hole-in-one.

Rep. Harold Collier, R-Ill., arranged the tournament at fabled Burning Tree, a private golf course. But he became so agitated over the solicitation of gifts that he cancelled it. The tournament wound up instead on the golf course at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, since the brass hats, like the lobbyists, were in no position to refuse.

After chewing up the fairways at Andrews, the congressmen made one last assault on the lobbyists' pocketbooks. They were invited to attend a gala cocktail party at the expense of the U.S. Independent Telephone Association.

Footnote: Talcott is again heading up the annual Congressional Golf Tournament, but he assured us there'll be no more "general solicitation." Said the rueful Talcott: "We've all learned something."

MILLION-DOLLAR BRIBE? Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., claims ITT's million-dollar offer to help finance a CIA sabotage operation against Chile's President Salvador Allende was a bribe.

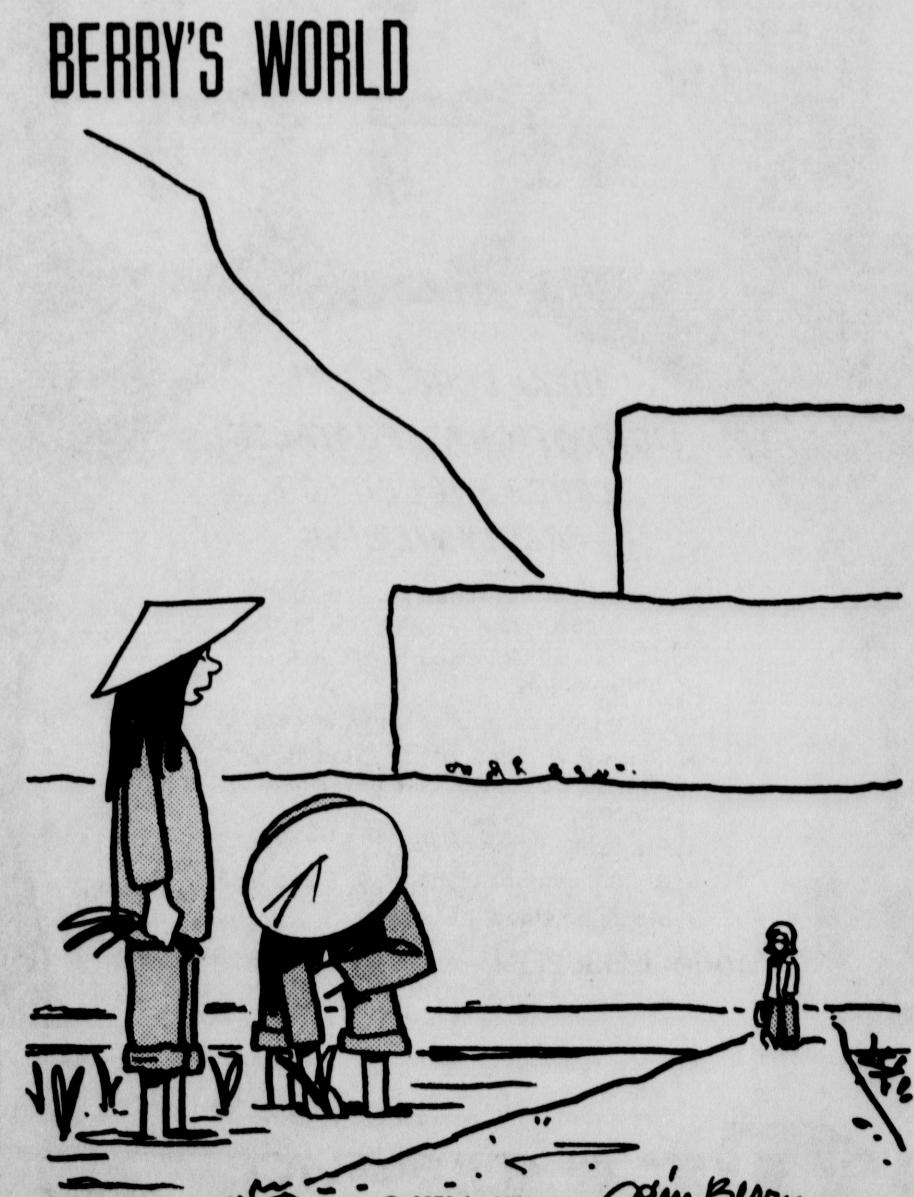

In a letter to departing Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, Rangel, an attorney, wrote: "In my opinion, this offer of money to the CIA was a violation of the federal bribery statute. It is difficult for me to see how an offer of one million dollars to the government could be construed in any other way than as an inducement meant to influence a certain policy decision. I am quite puzzled by the lack of action on the part of federal prosecutors."

WATERGATE FRIENDSHIP: At least one long-standing friendship has withstood the test of Watergate. Spencer Oliver, the Democratic official whose phone was tapped by the Watergate bugging crew, remains on close personal terms with President Nixon's speech writer, Pat Buchanan. The two grew up together in Washington. Although they wound up at opposite political poles, they still meet at night and argue their political differences over drinks. Incidentally, Buchanan has told Oliver he's convinced the President had no prior knowledge of the tap on Oliver's phone.

In discussing killing defense, H. W. Kelsey points out that any time you create an option for declarer he is likely to go wrong. If you don't give him an option, he can't.

You are sitting East and cover dummy's queen of hearts with your king. It holds that trick and your eight-spot the next, but South wins the third heart lead; plays his nine of clubs and lets it ride.

If you win the trick with your queen and lead back a diamond it is obvious that South will be forced to take the diamond finesse right then and there. He needs every missing face card for his bid.

How can you persuade South not to take that diamond finesse? Easy! Just win that first club with the ace, not the queen. South will now count four spades, three clubs, one heart and one diamond as sure winners. He won't risk the diamond finesse which may let your partner in to cash two heart tricks.

Can this play be expensive. Of course, it can. South may not have counted to nine; may take the finesse anyway and wind up with an over-trick.

Defense is Key

Knicks Wrap Up Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Four in a row seems almost impossible," sadly commented the giant Wilt Chamberlain, yet he and his Los Angeles Lakers teammates had lost their National Basketball Association title to New York in a virtual sweep.

"New York was the better team," added the 7-foot-1 Laker after the Knicks had hung up a 102-93 victory Thursday night and a 4-1 winning margin in playoff series games.

They had lost the opener and then come back to whip the defending champions four straight and there were few excuses.

"They are well balanced, have tremendous passing and so many good shooters that you can't concentrate on one man. The key to the series was that the defense stopped our running game."

The Knicks' defense throttled the Lakers, particularly when there was a chance of Los Angeles pulling ahead.

Ironically, the Lakers had wanted to play New York in the final series rather than Boston and cheered when the Knicks beat the Celtics in the Eastern playoffs.

Last year, it was Los Angeles

4-1 over the Knicks, who had won the NBA title in 1970 by beating the Lakers.

"I think we had more depth than we did the last time we won the title," commented Knicks' Coach Red Holzman. "We didn't have Jerry Lucas, Earl Monroe or Dean Meminger then."

Monroe took scoring honors for the finale on the New York side with 23 points and Bill Bradley, the Rhodes scholar, added 20.

Dave DeBusschere, who starred two nights previously with 33 points, tallied just one field goal and sprained his right ankle in the fourth quarter

when he finally did reach the scoring list.

Willis Reed, the nine-year veteran pro from Grambling, proved tremendous. Three years ago when the Knicks beat the Lakers for the title he was the most valuable in the series. Then his knees were injured. Last year he didn't even play in the finals.

This time he showed more quickness than any time during the season.

In the final game, he scored 18 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and had seven assists.

The Lakers had only one excuse. Back court ace Jerry West was hampered by strained hamstring muscles in both legs. The right was bandaged for the finale and he scored only 12 points.

"With Jerry hurt, our quickness, our speed and our running game just aren't the same," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman and even efforts of 28 points by Gail Goodrich and 23 by Chamberlain could not compensate for the bad West underpinnings.

For the winners, Jerry Lucas commented, "I really believe this is the most intelligent team in the history of pro basketball. Everybody on this team is thinking all the time. We don't overpower anybody, we have to finesse them. To do that, you have to play smart, intelligent basketball."

Knicks' players leap from the bench as the team scores and it becomes obvious that the game is in the bag. While the pair cheers the players on, Los Angeles Lakers' fans head for the exits in the

Cards Suffer Another Loss

Oakland A's Pound Rangers, 17-2

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
When you manage the Texas Rangers, you have to scramble sometimes to find a silver lining. So it was with Whitey Herzog Thursday night.

"The only good thing I can say about this is that they can only chalk up one loss against us," the rookie skipper said after the Oakland A's pounded out 23 hits and shelled the Rangers 17-2.

Not only that, but Herzog even managed to make himself believe that the outcome might have been different...if.

"It was embarrassing," he conceded, "but we gave them six outs in the first inning and got five runs down and that was the game. If they only score two runs like they should have, we're in good shape."

True. Then the final score would have only been 14-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Chicago White Sox edged California 4-3 in 12 innings. Kansas City trounced Detroit 8-2 and Boston nipped Cleveland 4-3. In the only National League action, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-3.

It resembled batting practice for the A's as nine of them got more than one hit, including rookie catcher Tim Hosley, just up from the minors.

Reggie Jackson doubled home the first two runs against Mike Paul. Ray Fosse singled home another and Dick Green singled for two more. Fosse hit a two-run homer in the fifth. Hosley delivered a two-run single as the A's scored five more in the eighth and Deron Johnson homered for one of four runs in the ninth.

"Us starting pitchers are always griping about not getting enough runs," said Ken Holtzman, 6-2, who allowed only three hits and one unearned run in seven innings. "Then a night like tonight comes along and you begin to realize that most things tend to even out."

Pat Kelly singled home Jorge Orta from second base in the 12th inning to give the White Sox and Wilbur Wood their victory over California. After Bill Singer held Chicago to three hits over 11 innings, Ron Peranowski came on in the 12th and walked Orta. Luis Alvarado sacrificed before Kelly delivered his winning hit.

Boston, held without a hit or a baserunner for 5 2-3 innings by Cleveland's Dick Tidrow, rallied for three runs against Jerry Johnson in the eighth to edge the Indians.

Chris Speier's two-run single in the fifth inning snapped a 3-3 tie and boosted San Francisco past St. Louis. Willie McCovey and Dave Kingman homered for the Giants. Ray Busse for the Cardinals, who lost for the 21st time in 27 games.

Clawson followed Werneke's 6-1, one-hit pitching performance in the opener with a no-hitter in the nightcap, giving O'Connor's a 3-0 decision and the sweep.

Werneke homered with one in the bottom of the fifth in the opener to aid his own cause. Lonnie Schott accounted for the first two O'Connor's runs in the third on a single with the bases filled.

Clawson struck out 12 batters in the nightcap, and got offensive support from Tom Hunter and Ron Mooney, each of who had a pair of hits.

O'Connor's Hurlers Tough on Boonville

O'Connor's Chevy-Buick, backed by the pitching of Ron Clawson and Jim Werneke, opened its 1973 softball season with a doubleheader sweep over Boonville, Thursday night in Housel Park.

Clawson followed Werneke's 6-1, one-hit pitching performance in the opener with a no-hitter in the nightcap, giving O'Connor's a 3-0 decision and the sweep.

Werneke homered with one in the bottom of the fifth in the opener to aid his own cause. Lonnie Schott accounted for the first two O'Connor's runs in the third on a single with the bases filled.

Clawson struck out 12 batters in the nightcap, and got offensive support from Tom Hunter and Ron Mooney, each of who had a pair of hits.

Junior Varsity Baseball Bengals Divide Twinbill

The Smith-Cotton junior varsity baseball team split with Columbia Hickman's jayvees at Liberty Park Stadium Thursday afternoon and ran their season's record to 3-1.

Mark Stockstill picked up his second win against no losses in the opener, hurling a two-hitter and getting credit for a 4-2 win.

Columbia mounted a 2-0 lead by the top of the third, but the Bengals chased in two in the fourth and one each in the fifth and sixth.

Randy Patrick starred at the plate, going two-for-three. Cliff Callis and Bill Rabourn had one RBI each.

Columbia jumped out early in the second game, and held on for a 7-4 win. Trailing 6-1 as play moved to the bottom of the fourth, S-C scored one in that inning and two more in the fifth, but fell short in their comeback attempt.

Columbia picked up seven hits and cashed in on three costly S-C errors.

Bill Baird was the winning pitcher: Mark Thompson, who was relieved by Stockstill and Jim Vansell, was charged with the loss.

S-C has left on the schedule a twinbill with Park Hill's jayvees; however, no date nor field have been named for the games.

Canadiens Cap Record Breaking NHL Series

CHICAGO (AP) — Their objective achieved, the Montreal Canadiens took turns sipping champagne from the coveted Stanley Cup which they earned Thursday night with a hard-fought 6-4 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks.

Aside from a shout here and there, there was no whooping it up, no hollering and no spraying of champagne. They were tired, weary warriors. They had done their job. The Stanley

Otis' Catch Sparks Royals Past Tigers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "It was just routine... just a routine catch."

Amos Otis said it was his words fell on deaf ears. Nobody agreed with the star center fielder of the Kansas City Royals.

Otis' "routine catch" came in the fifth inning of Kansas City's 8-2 American League baseball victory over the Detroit Tigers Thursday night.

Otis seemingly ran a country mile into right center field, finally shoving his hand between the sinking shot by Jim Northrup and his shoetop. He had to hold up the ball to prove he had it.

Eddie Brinkman was on first base at the time Northrup struck his blow. He didn't think Otis had a Chinaman's chance of getting the ball and was racing into third as the catch was made. He was doubled up at first base.

"They don't call me Famous Amos for nothing," Otis grinned. "No, I didn't stop to think whether I could get it. You don't think... you just go. I had a pretty good jump on it."

The Royals celebrated the catch in the bottom of the inning by exploding for five runs against Joe Coleman, 6-2, with Otis contributing a single to the outburst.

Eleven players strolled on the plate, Carl Taylor starting it off with a bunt single before Fred Patek tripled to send Taylor home with the tie-breaking run. Steve Hovley and Otis added singles and Ed Kirkpatrick, hitting in his 16th consecutive game, and Cookie Rojas doubles to the assault.

Dick Drago, 3-2, yielded both Tiger tallies in the first on Northrup's leadoff single, a walk to Al Kaline, Gates Brown's run-scoring single and Willie Horton's double play ball.

The defeat dropped the Tigers out of first place in the AL East and elevated the idle Milwaukee Brewers into the top spot.

"I felt like I could beat anybody," said Drago, who was

Two Coaches Are Named To Staff

Gary Garner, head basketball coach at Trenton, Mo. Junior College, and the first-year JuCo cage coach at Moberly Area Junior College, Charles Spoonhour, have been named to the coaching staff by Bill Barton of State Fair Community College for next month's SFCC Basketball Clinics.

Garner, who moved up to Trenton two years ago after coaching at Kemper Military Academy in Bonneville, will assist Barton at the first week's session, June 4-8.

Spoonhour, who in his first year at Moberly guided the Greyhounds to the Region XVI (state) junior college finals in early March, will help Barton conduct the second week of drills in the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds, June 9-14.

In addition to Barton, Garner and Spoonhour, the trio will be assisted by area high school coaches.

The clinics will feature two sessions daily with boys between the ages of 11-13 assigned to the 9:30 a.m. sessions. Boys between the ages of 14-16 will be assigned to the afternoon sessions, which begin at 1 p.m.

The cost of the clinic is $20 for one week or $35 for both weeks.

Interested persons should contact Dean Robert Solomon or Barton at SFCC.

Cup now goes back to Montreal where they feel it belongs following a one year absence in Boston.

"The Stanley Cup is the only trophy," said Yvan Cournoyer who set a playoff record of 15 goals when he hammered in the tie-breaking and winning goal at 8:13 of the third period.

"The Conn Smythe," said Cournoyer, the most valuable player in the playoffs. "I wasn't even thinking about it."

One man can do nothing. I didn't think about the record. When you work hard, things happen. And if they happen, they happen. How important was my goal? How important was Henri's goal?"

Henri Richard, playing on his 11th Stanley Cup winner, got the Canadiens going with a score as only 12 seconds remained in the first period and the Hawks leading 2-0 on the first two of three goals by Pit Martin.

Goals by Pete Mahovlich and Rejean Houle gave the Canadiens a 3-2 lead early in the second period. As the series had been going, rookie Dave Kryskow tied it with a disputed goal at 8:32. Frank Mahovlich, whose record of 14 goals in one series set two years ago was wiped out by Cournoyer, made it 4-3 before Martin completed his hat trick to tie it at 4-4.

That's how it stood until Jacques LeMaire turned it around for the Canadiens. LeMaire stole the puck from Jerry Kobrab and fired a shot at Tony Esposito.

The puck went over the net, hit the glass boards and bounded back in front of the Chicago goalie.

"It was still bouncing but I wanted to get the shot off as quickly as possible," said Cournoyer. "I think Esposito was off balance when it went by him."

Marc Tardif added a power play goal at 12:42 and that was the end of the scoring in the record shattering series.

Aside from Cournoyer's record, the 56 goals by two teams for a final series set a record for not only six games, with the Canadiens winning four to two for Chicago, but it also set a record for seven games. Montreal's 33 goals was also a one-team record.

"Tough series," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden. "It was real tough. But nothing we didn't expect."

Richard, the 37-year-old veteran who carried the Stanley Cup over his head around the rink after the two teams had congratulated each other, wasn't sure if this was his last game.

"I don't know," said Henri, the tiniest of the Flying Frenchmen. "I'll have to think about it for a few weeks. No," he laughed, "the Cup wasn't heavy, it was very light."

Rep. Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, the majority floor leader, recommended the bills be "referred to the speaker's desk," and it was approved by a voice vote.

Included were bills to:

—Give a bonus to veterans.
—Protect newsmen's sources.
—Give a five-year sentence for using a firearm in a crime.

—Allow the state treasurer to set up a receiving fund for federal revenue sharing money through which the state could earn interest. The treasurer already has deposited the state's revenue sharing money in interest-bearing accounts.

—Have the state regulate private, nonprofit health plans.

—Allow voter registration by mail.

—Create a board to receive citizens' complaints about insurance firms.

—Allow firms to deduct from their taxes the cost of installing anti-pollution devices.

The ill-fated bills had not yet been brought to the floor for debate and first round approval.

There were 870 bills and 58 resolutions introduced in the House this session. About 200 bills have been acted on in the House. Only three bills have been approved by both the House and Senate and sent to the governor.

Before adjourning for the weekend Thursday, the Missouri House defeated, 81-70, the women's Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The chief sponsor of the resolution, Rep. Sue Shear, D-Clayton, said she thought those who voted for it when it was given tentative approval switched their votes because an amendment was tacked on requiring a public vote.

Several representatives said that would not be constitutional, since ratification of U.S. constitutional amendments is up to the legislatures.

"We'll be back next year," she said. "It is our hope that women will become first class citizens by 1976, the 200th anniversary of our country."

The House approved and sent to the Senate a proposed constitutional change to allow cities to levy a sales tax on gasoline to raise money for public transit systems. If approved by the Senate, the measure would be on the ballot next general election.

Also approved by the House was a bill to increase the number of highway patrolmen from 750 to 800.

Sent to the Senate were other bills to:

—Exempt physicians from liability when giving emergency treatment.

—Set up a commission to study operation of the legislature and recommend changes to improve efficiency.

—Allow cities with sales taxes to audit Department of Revenue records of the cities' accounts.

Mitchell, Stans Say Vindication Coming

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans say they believe they will be vindicated when the facts behind their indictments are known.

They were indicted Thursday on charges of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and perjury in connection with their roles as cabinet officers and leaders of President Nixon's re-election campaign. The case involves a secret campaign contribution and alleged improper government influence.

Financier Robert L. Vesco, a fugitive, and New Jersey Republican leader Harry L. Sears, Vesco's lawyer, were charged in the indictments with conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

The four will be arraigned in U.S. District Court here May 21. If later convicted of all charges, Mitchell and Stans would face maximum prison terms of up to 50 years, Vesco and Sears, 20 years.

Mitchell denied any wrongdoing Thursday and said, "I am certain that the judicial proceedings in this case will fully vindicate and confirm the absence of any wrongdoing."

Stans said he was "greatly dismayed" by the grand jury action and added: "I expect that when all the facts are heard, I will be vindicated." Sears also claimed innocence.

The indictment alleges that Vesco, 37, made a secret $200,- 000 cash gift to the GOP campaign on April 10 in an attempt to influence a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of his far-flying financial operations.

The SEC filed a civil complaint on Nov. 27, charging that

Vesco, 20 other persons and a score of corporations looted $224 million from Investors Overseas Services (IOS), four foreign mutual funds they controlled.

U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr., who announced the indictments, said there was nothing to implicate President Nixon in the alleged conspiracy. The President's former counsel, John W. Dean III, was mentioned in the indictments.

The SEC filed a civil complaint on Nov. 27, charging that Vesco, 20 other persons and a score of corporations looted $224 million from Investors Overseas Services (IOS), four foreign mutual funds they controlled.

U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr., who announced the indictments, said there was nothing to implicate President Nixon in the alleged conspiracy. The President's former counsel, John W. Dean III, was mentioned in the indictments.

The four will be arraigned in U.S. District Court here May 21. If later convicted of all charges, Mitchell and Stans would face maximum prison terms of up to 50 years, Vesco and Sears, 20 years.

Mitchell denied any wrongdoing Thursday and said, "I am certain that the judicial proceedings in this case will fully vindicate and confirm the absence of any wrongdoing."

Stans said he was "greatly dismayed" by the grand jury action and added: "I expect that when all the facts are heard, I will be vindicated." Sears also claimed innocence.

MOST CAR SALESMEN WILL TELL YOU THIS DOESN'T EXIST.

A SPORTS CAR WITH ROOM FOR FOUR ADULTS.

First, what do we mean by a "Sports Car"? Well, we don't mean a souped-up sedan with racing stripes.

The Fiat 124 Sport Coupe has a 1592 cc engine with twin overhead camshafts that redlines at 6500 rpm.

It has power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels and a standard 5-speed gearbox.

It's a car you actually drive, unlike most modern cars which you merely point.

If you find this hard to believe, all you have to do is take the car out on the road. Any Fiat dealer will arrange it for you.

You may find that a sports car with room for four adults is exactly the kind of car you'd like. In which case, to be honest, you have a choice. It's the Fiat 124 Sport Coupe or something like a Ferrari 2+2.

But for the price of a Ferrari 2+2 you could buy four Fiats. And you'd have room for sixteen people.

About a gallon of gasoline a day.

With the demand for fuel rising faster than the supply, here's one way to help ease our energy crisis. According to the latest U.S. Bureau of Highways figures, the national average for gas mileage is about 13.5 miles per gallon. The new Datsun 1200 gets around 30 miles per gallon or over twice the national average. The average car in the U.S. is driven just over 10,000 miles a year, so you can save about a gallon of gas every day by driving a 1200. With gasoline prices going up, it's a considerable saving of another important resource: your money. Drive a Datsun...then decide.

Ann Landers

Says She's More Woman Than Child

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to this man for 12 years. My daughter by a previous marriage is 15. Bill has been a good father to Wendy and to our own two children.

About two years ago I noticed that Bill fooled around with Wendy a lot, punching her, pulling her on his lap, and tickling her. She would run giggling and screaming into the other room. It seemed like innocent fun and I said nothing, although he never behaved like that with our own two daughters.

Lately he has been walking into Wendy's bedroom "to hurry her up" when she is dressing. This morning I heard her shout, "Please, will you knock first? I hate it when you just walk in and I have nothing on."

I had a private chat with Wendy that night and she said he has never done anything "wrong" but she wishes her stepdad would "leave her alone." Wendy is very mature for 15 and now I suddenly remember other letters in your column about fathers and stepdaughters. Please repeat the advice. I blocked it out of my consciousness and now I know why. — Freud Was No Fool

Dear Freud: The advice goes like this: A 15-year-old girl is more of a woman than a child. She is old enough to tell a stepfather, a boyfriend or a Funny Uncle to keep his peacock's hands off her body — if she really wants them kept off. Some teenagers are testing their wow-power just to see if it works, so don't make any rash assumptions, Mom. That train runs both ways.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been able to handle life's major problems without help. But the petty things somehow get ballooned into enormous proportions.

Doesn't a four-generation photograph mean four people in the same family, such as a great-grandmother, grandmother, mother and the baby — all directly related? If, say, the baby is adopted, doesn't that break the bloodline?

Please put your answer in the paper. If I produced a letter from you they'd say I wrote it myself. You can't imagine the arguing that has been going on in regard to this difference in opinion. — Fur Is Flying In Austin, Texas

Dear Corriger: I get the picture all right, but I'd like to point out that tact and consideration for a person's feelings can be just as important as honesty. You should have waited until the company left before you "corrected" your parents. No one likes to be hauled up short in front of his friends.

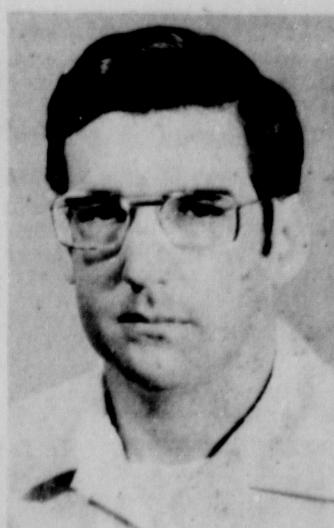

Dear Fur: Yes, I CAN imagine. And from the way you worded the question, I'll bet you aren't going to be happy with my answer.

An adopted child should have exactly the same status as any other child. And this goes for family pictures as well as everything else.

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to be straightforward and not afraid to say exactly what you think. Please don't let me down. The problem is with my parents.

Is there anything wrong with correcting your dad or mother if you say something fake in front of company? I was brought up to think that lying is wrong no matter who does it. If a kid is taught that he must always tell the truth and then he hears one of his parents breaking that rule, is it wrong to say so in front of whoever happens to be there? I hope you get the picture. — A Correcter In Trouble

Dear Corriger: I get the picture all right, but I'd like to point out that tact and consideration for a person's feelings can be just as important as honesty. You should have waited until the company left before you "corrected" your parents. No one likes to be hauled up short in front of his friends.

Wellsville Fire Damages Three Buildings

WELLSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Firemen from several communities in north-central Missouri responded Thursday night to a blaze here, confining it to three buildings.

The fire started about 8 p.m. in a Western Auto Store.

A sheriff's deputy said an adjoining tavern and newspaper office suffered mostly smoke and water damage.

The blaze was under control by 10 p.m. but smoldered for several hours. No injuries were reported.

Firemen from Mexico, Vanalia, Montgomery City, New Florence, and a county co-operative department in Audrain County fought the blaze.

Wellsville is a community of about 1,500 persons 20 miles southeast of Mexico.

Celiac Disease Lifelong Problem?

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your article about celiac disease. Well, my little boy has it and he is on a gluten-free diet. He has had it for 11 months. He is 24 months old now.

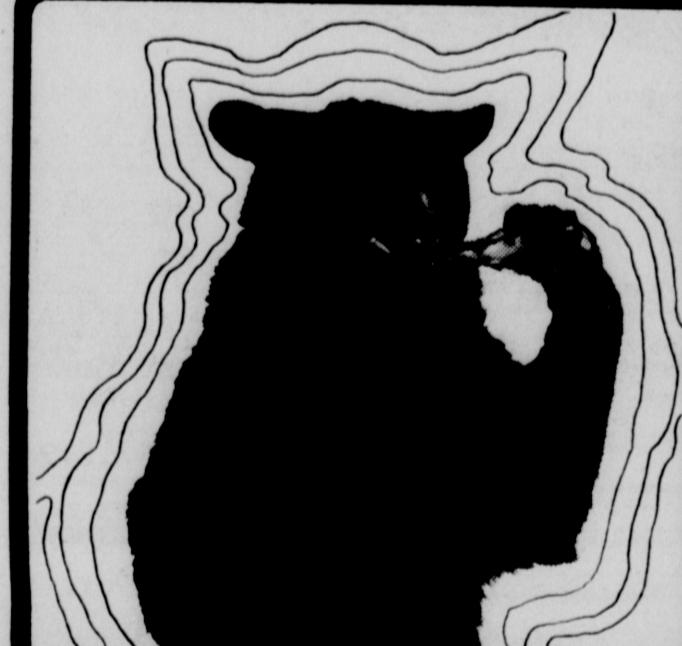

Is there a sure cure for it or will he have to be on this type of diet for the rest of his life? Will my little boy suffer bleeding around his brain with this type of disease?

You mentioned in an article that the patient should not have milk or mild products or sugar. Now my doctors told me he could have them. If he is not supposed to have them, just what is left that he can have? At his age he needs milk to grow doesn't he? Should I ask my doctor for vitamins for him or just give him the ones on the market today? Trying to find the right food is a problem. Some of the products sold do not tell what the ingredients are. Trying to feed another child without this disease is a problem. The foods she wants, the little one wants also. What is a mother to do?

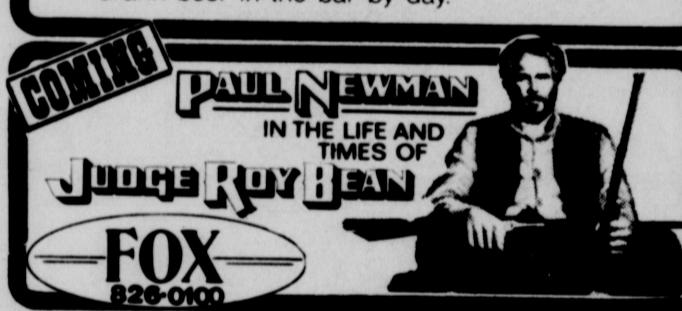

Dear Reader — There are various degrees of severity of celiac disease and differences in children and adults. In uncomplicated cases the main problem is the allergic-type reaction of the digestive tract to the gluten protein found in all cereals except corn and rice. By eliminating all cereal products except corn and rice from the diet, and any foods that are made with cereal products containing gluten, the problem can be controlled.

Food labeling is a problem. Hopefully that will improve with the changes being announced in food labeling. Flour, which contains gluten, is found in a variety of foods, including commercial ice cream, cold cuts, hot dogs and places you least expect to find cereal. Gluten is present in cream soups, gravy and anything which uses a white sauce or flour for a thickening agent.

In some inadequately treated cases the damage to the lining of the small intestine destroys the normal enzymes needed to split the milk sugar (lactose) and make it impossible to utilize milk. The same thing can happen to the enzymes formed by the intestine to split double sugars such as ordinary table sugar. These are complications of the primary problem and are not always present. With severe diarrhea and real problems it is

Actress Spends Time With God's Own Scenery

By JOAN CROSBY

LOS ANGELES — Jill St. John, who has gotten herself structurally integrated, works when she wants to and spends much of her time skiing in Aspen, Colo.

Which is one of the reasons you don't see her much on TV. She's done three things this past season, a Bob Hope special and two other specials, Old Yellowstone and the recent Saga of Sonora.

Of the latter she says, "It's fluff." There are many reasons, she says, for taking a part "not the least of which is monetary. If I get offered something I really want to do, I'm lucky. I'd rather do only good things but they don't happen that often.

"I don't even have an ideal part. The most fun I have ever had was in 'Diamonds Are Forever.' We were on a good location, it was a James Bond picture, I wore pretty clothes — all the things that make a major motion picture."

Ask Jill to give you a one-word description of herself and after a brief moment of thought, she says, "Honest."

"I refuse to lie," she says, "it's so much easier to tell the truth. Sometimes the kindest thing you can do is say goodbye to someone instead of carrying on a dishonest relationship."

She's got many interests, including tropical fish. She is writing a book on the management of closed water systems for marine biologists.

Baker Is Walking Tall These Days

By JOAN CROSBY

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — Joe Don Baker, a big man, can't help walking tall. But he's walking even taller these days as a result of his fine reviews in the Bing Crosby Productions release, "Walking Tall," in which he plays former sheriff Buford Pusser, a man who cleaned up a Tennessee town ridden with vice and corruption.

Baker's movie career is, as a result of the film, in full swing. Which means he probably won't be doing as much TV as before. This past season, for example, he was a biased, backwoods father in a pilot movie called Doc, and he was the overly virile in-law to a homosexual in "That Certain Summer."

Joe Don decided in his senior year at North Texas State College that acting would be the life for him. A native of Groesbeck, Tex., he found himself on stage when a friend asked him to play a small part.

"They just needed someone to walk on at the end of the play. When we got to the performance and I saw my buddy and the others in the play in another world on the stage — I hadn't seen that in rehearsal — I learned that acting is a place where you can go to escape from this world. No one bothers you there. It's a safe place to be."

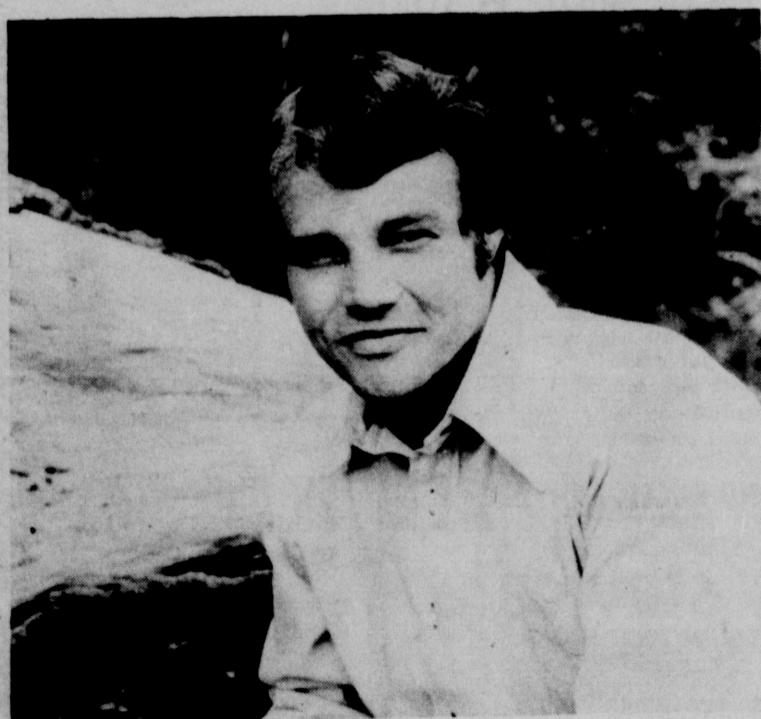

Joe Don, after joining the army, wound up in New York doing such plays as "Marathon '33" and "Blues For Mr. Charlie."

He came to California in the late '60s and has kept reasonably busy in TV. He played the lead in the CBS-TV movie, "Mongo's Back in Town," and did roles in many major series.

The role he played in "That Certain Summer" was a small one, but memorable and a favorite of his.

"It only took one day to film, but I liked it because it gave me a chance to work with Martin Sheen, who is one of my favorite actors. It's funny how Hollywood puts you in categories. I had been getting offers for leads until that picture was telecast. After that, they offered me bitty parts."

Fortunately, Joe Don is now back into leads, walking tall into a stalk of future scripts with not a bitty part in sight.

Joe Don Baker

Not many beautiful Hollywood types can make that statement.

She is phasing out her Indian jewelry business, although she is keeping her boutique in Aspen, and introducing ethnic jewelry from abroad into the Indian collection.

As far as her structural integration goes, Jill went to a chiropractor where it was discovered that she had one arm longer than the other "and I was standing crooked."

Jill's arms are now the same length and she is standing straight, even if the treatment was, she says, very painful.

Even with painful integration, Jill has no complaints.

"I'm happy. I have a good life. I live an honest, pure kind of life — not pure in the terms of being celibate — but pure and close to nature. I like myself and I love living in Aspen where I can wake up every morning and look at God's good scenery."

And the scenery can look at her.

TEACHERS WARNED OF PUPIL TRAPS

LONDON (AP) — Permissiveness and sexual sophistication among children has put many traps in the path of teachers, according to "The Teacher."

The weekly newspaper of Britain's National Union of Teachers advises young teachers to avoid being alone with a child of either sex, and warns them to refrain from unnecessary physical contact with pupils.

An Ex-Bracken Wants To Be Typed As The Wife That Raises Cocker Spaniels

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Karen Jensen was one of the pretty girls who made Bracken's World a paradise for girl watchers. It's been a couple of years since the series went off — and there's still a mystery about the cancellation — and the beautiful blonde is rolling along.

But it's doubtful how long she intends to roll along this way. She isn't completely gung ho about a career — at least not about an acting career.

Lots of things have happened to Karen since Bracken's World went off. She ticks them off on her fingers.

"I got married," she says, "and I've done quite a few parts, and I've turned down more parts, and I began raising cocker spaniels, and I became a painter."

First and foremost, though, was the marriage. She is now Mrs. John Neilson, the wife of an actor-turned-writer. That's the role she prefers.

"I'm really only working as an actress now," she says, "until John gets established as a writer. Then I hope to gradually phase out my own career."

"John wants to have children right away. I'm not sure I want to lose my freedom just yet. Eventually, sure, but not for a little while."

Karen Jensen

She and John are toying with some big dreams — such as going to live somewhere else, maybe even New Zealand, a country Karen loves.

"It is so beautiful there," she says. "The people are nice and they haven't ruined the countryside and everybody has a horse."

TV Scout Reports

Steambath will be rescheduled.

At a party Victor Borge was asked if he would play something on the piano. He climbed on the piano and said, "I'm on the piano! What should I play?"

Rodney Dangerfield says his parents didn't respect him when he was a kid. "Other kids learned their alphabets. My old man taught me to heel, sit and stay."

She's done a couple of movies since Bracken's World, but they didn't turn out so well. One, for example, was the film version of the best-seller, "The Salzburg Connection," which managed to turn an exciting book into a completely dull and confusing movie.

"It was a bad script," she says, "but we all felt we could improve it during the shooting. We didn't."

Bracken's World, she says, was both good and bad for her.

"The series made me known," she says, "but it typed me as a starlet-sort. That's not me."

She says she is more of a square. She doesn't want to be known as a sophisticate although that's what she looks like. She'd rather be Mrs. John Neilson, the wife who raises cocker spaniels.

ISRAEL ABSORBS IMMIGRANTS

TEL AVIV (AP) — By the end of 1972, 225,000 immigrants had arrived in Israel since the 1967 Six Day War, says the Ministry of Immigrant Absorption.

About 75 per cent of the immigrants are from Europe and the Americas, with the balance coming from Asia and Africa.

Although immigration from the West declined the past year, immigration from the Soviet Union has increased and now about 70,000 applications for immigration here are awaiting action by Soviet officials, the Israelis said.

Four main centers of world Jewry still remain outside Israel: the United States and Canada, 6 million; Western Europe, 1.25 million; Latin America, 1 million and the Soviet Union, 3 million.

"Owning a boat," he says, "is insanity."

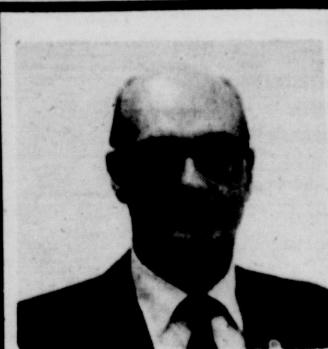

He owned the Moonraker before he became Cannon, but he has long been successful enough to be in the yachting fraternity. It's the only way to travel.

"I sail it," he says, "and then I bring it in and then I walk away from it. That's the only way for me. I don't want to paint or varnish."

For a long time, before he became an owner, he sailed with friends. He says that's much to be preferred — "the right way to do it is to sail on somebody else's boat."

The Moonraker was built in Japan, from a William Garden design. Conrad describes it as "a comfortable boat, remarkably fast for her beam, a boat that looks like a boat."

So far, he hasn't voyaged too far.

"Our sailing in Southern California is pretty lousy," he says. "You can go up and down the coast or out to Catalina or the Channel Islands. Compared to the East Coast or the Northwest, it's dull, but it's better than nothing."

"I'd like to go to the Caribbean and sail for a few months. First chance I get, I'll go to Hawaii — that's a simple sail — it's downhill all the way. Bringing it back is the neat trick."

He often sails to Catalina, where his son, 16, Chris, attends the Catalina Island School. Both father and son are enthusiastic about the school and Bill is on the Board of Trustees. He wants to be an oceanographer and the school has courses in that subject.

"It's a great school," Bill says. "Catalina is nice and rural — the kids have to chase the buffaloes off the soccer field — and it's a small school and Chris is thriving there."

It also gives Bill Conrad some place to cruise to, aboard that grand old vessel, Moonraker.

'The Odd Couple'

Live up to Their Roles

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — It's hard for Jack Klugman and Tony Randall to remember back to the days BTOC — Before The Odd Couple. All they know now, Tony says, is that it's getting weird.

"We seem to be living our parts," Tony says. "And I'm not sure if we were this way before the show. But now Jack is messy and I'm clean. Jack drinks beer and I drink wine. Jack smokes cigars and I don't smoke at all."

"He's a real Oscar and I'm a real Felix."

Maybe that's the price of success in two such strongly-conceived parts. Maybe all actors who have to live with their characters so long and so intimately would get that way. Or maybe it's because deep down inside Jack and Tony were really Oscar and Felix all along.

There's no doubt about The Odd Couple's success. As Tony says, "the ratings are too good to be true." It seems certain to run for a few more years, which is all Tony wants out of it.

"By then," he says, "I'll be well enough off financially that I'll never have to take a job I don't like."

He's already talking about jobs he'd like to take, when and if. He says he's heard that the Metropolitan Opera in New York is thinking of starting a "Piccolo Met," a little Met, to do smaller operas as opposed to Grand Opera. He says he'd like to become a part of that project.

"There are hundreds of smaller operas," he says, "which are never done because we only have grand opera houses. I'd like to direct and stage some of them, some of the early Rossini things and that sort of work."

That will wait the end of The Odd Couple. Also waiting that day is Randall's return to New York City on a permanent basis. He still goes back there when he isn't shooting but he spends most of the year here — and he much prefers New York.

"I love the show more than anything I've ever done," he says. "We get to rehearse and we get to do it in front of a live audience. I even have a say in the casting. All would be well — if it was only done in New York."

"But they figured it out for me — it would cost $5,000 more per show to do it in New York. That's $120,000 a year and that's too much."

He prefers the East because he likes what New York has to offer — the opera, the museums, the art galleries.

"Here in California," he says, "when I have no roles to do, I can't find anything to do with myself."

So far, his time in California has been busy, and he has slight thumb-twiddling time.

"All my success has meant to me here," he says, "is that I work 14 hours a day. We have found that we can't get good quality if we shoot fast so we work long days. Besides, both Jack and I would rather work than sit around here doing absolutely nothing at all."

Apropos of nothing at all you might be interested in Tony's least favorite line of all time: "This program has been filmed in front of a live audience."

Life Is Different for a Teen-ager in a Hollywood Whirl

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — At 15, Judy Norton is almost a typical teenager. She likes boys and pop music and can't wait until she's old enough to drive.

She would be typical, except that she's an actress by trade. Judy's other name is Mary Ellen Walton — she plays the oldest daughter on CBS' hit show of family life in rural America in the '30s, The Waltons.

So far, she's finding the life exciting and interesting. And, all things being equal, she plans on staying in the acting profession as long as she can.

"I'll stay with it," Judy says, "as long as I have any luck. If not, I may go into something else."

Just what that "something else" would be she isn't sure. It's all an academic issue at the moment, because it looks like The Waltons is here to stay, for a few years, at least.

Judy is a Santa Monica-born girl. Her father drives an oil company truck. The only show business in her background is her mother's experience. As a girl in England Mrs. Norton and her brother had a hand-to-hand balancing act.

Judy got into the business following her older sister, Ricki, who had done some modelling and acting. Ricki got Judy interested in it and she read for the part of Mary Ellen in the movie, "The Homecoming," which became The Waltons. Ricki still does some commercials.

Like all sub-18-year-olds, Judy must go to school on the set when the series is shooting. When the show is off, she goes to a regular school, in the tenth grade. She says she gets along pretty well in school, even though some of the kids make remarks — "I guess they're jealous" — although most of them tell her how much they like the show.

She gets a lot of mail and answers it all. Most of it comes from girls around 13 — the age she's supposed to be on the show — who identify with her and confide their problems. She also gets a bunch of letters from boys — up to 20 years old — who look at Judy and like what they see.

She's been dating "since I was 14½" — all of six months — and enjoys the experience. She says she likes clothes, too, but hasn't any time for shopping. She likes rock music, but doesn't buy many records. She prefers to listen to the radio and classifies herself as "picky about music."

What she's really interested in, though, is cars.

HEARTWORM DISEASE COMES FROM MOSQUITOES

CHICAGO (AP) — Many dogs annually fall victim to canine heartworm disease, which in its advanced stages causes impaired breathing, coughing, listlessness and weight loss. If not detected and treated, the disease can lead to extensive organ damage and death, warns the American Veterinary Medical Assn.

Canine heartworm disease is caused by long white worms called Dirofilaria immitis. The disease can reach advanced stages and even cause death before signs become apparent to the owner. In its early stages heartworm disease can be detected using a blood test. Sometimes an infected dog will have adult worms but no larvae in the blood. To confirm the infection in these cases, a veterinarian must use X-rays and other laboratory tests.

Technically known as dirofilariasis, canine heartworm disease is transmitted by mosquitoes. When biting an infected dog, a mosquito may take up blood containing larval forms of the heartworm that are microscopic in size. After a two-week incubation period in the mosquito, the larvae become infective.

Is Proud of Her Latin Background

Carmen Zapata

By JOAN CROSBY

STUDIO CITY, Calif. — Six years ago, Carmen Zapata moved to Hollywood from New York where she had a successful career going on the musical comedy stage.

For the first year, Carmen didn't get one acting job. Then she broke through and is now one of the busiest women on TV.

Unfortunately, she spends a lot of time in the kitchen. She was Anthony Quinn's housekeeper on his series, The Man and the City. She was the housekeeper on The New Dick Van Dyke Show and has been told, despite a format change for the series, that she will probably make multiple appearances in the series next season.

She was on the Emmy nominating ballot for her performance of the French friend to the actress lead in Carola, a Jean Renoir play telecast this past season on the Hollywood Television Theatre.

She plays mostly Latinas and mostly with an accent although she speaks a perfect brand of non-regional English. She was born in the Spanish Harlem section of New York City to a Mexican father, who had run away from the orphan asylum where he had spent his early life, jumped a ship to Spain, eventually migrated to Puerto Rico and then New York, where he met the woman who was to become Carmen's mother.

She was from Argentina, and her parents also went to Spain, then to Cuba and then to New York.

"So you see," attractive, dignified Carmen says with the pride of a Latina, "I have a lot of Latin strains in me."

Show business, particularly music, represented a way out of the ghetto for Carmen and she studied opera. Her first job was in "Oklahoma!" during the show's last two years on Broadway. She toured with it, eventually winding up as Ado Annie.

Her real name is Carmen Teresa Margarita Roca y Zapata, but for a while she was also known as Marge Cameron, a comic who played night clubs.

When she was signed for her first appearance as Teela on The New Dick Van Dyke Show, everyone was worried about whether or not she could carry comedy. Most of her roles lately have been heavily dramatic.

Bootheel Bonanza Revealed in Farm Subsidy Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of the 283 Missouri farmers who got subsidies of $20,000 or more last year from the federal government were concentrated in six counties of the Bootheel.

The big cotton and soybean growers in the southeast delta country also got almost $5.6 million of the $8.5 million involved in payments of $20,000 or more.

The names of 18,000 farmers throughout the country who received the large subsidies were printed in the Congressional Record at the insistence of Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill.

"Nothing more than welfare for the wealthy," Findley called the payments.

The largest one listed in Missouri was $75,702 to Marshall Lands Inc. in Mississippi County. Mahan & Radcliffe, in Stoddard County, got $73,694.

Coming in the $60,000 bracket were E.B. Gee Jr. and Charles Pikey & Son in New Madrid County and W.P. Hunter, Taylor Brothers and Samuel Alberson in Stoddard County.

The largest payments outside the southeast Missouri Bootheel were $63,968 for a farm operated by the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints in Jackson County near Kansas City; $61,352 for O.F. Gremaud in Perry County between Cape Girardeau and Ste. Genevieve, and $60,336 for Donald E. Morris in Holt County.

The subsidy payments are for curtailing production of cotton, wheat and feed grains or for complying with conservation practices which take crop land out of production.

There is a limit of $55,000 for each farm, but a farm can get more than this if more than one crop is involved. The list printed in the Congressional Record showed Knipp Bros. entry for $20,497 in Cooper County and a Knipp Bros. entry for $29,509 in Moniteau County.

The payments of $20,000 or more were spread among 42 of the state's 114 counties.

The 54 in New Madrid County, 42 in Pemiscot, 35 in Mississippi, 20 in Dunklin and 18 each in Stoddard and Scott gave the Bootheel 187 of the 283 big payments.

New Madrid County also led the dollar ranking at $1,592,829.

Figures for the other top five counties were $1,204,407 for Pemiscot, $1,096,784 for Mississippi, $530,237 for Dunklin, $644,717 for Stoddard and $489,184 for Scott.

Atchison County, in the northwest corner of the state, had 11 of the big payments for a total of $280,269; and seven in Holt County totaled $266,592.

Bates county in southwest Missouri also had seven big payments for a total of $182,441. Carroll County had six for a total of $182,005.

Other counties where multiple payments ran the total to more than $100,000 were Ray, Saline, Ste. Genevieve, Lewis, Jackson, Perry, Pike and Chariton.

Shuffle Personnel To Fill Vacancies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon shuffled personnel to fill Watergate-created White House vacancies Thursday as a federal grand jury indicted two of his former Cabinet members for financial irregularities in last year's re-election campaign.

The President recalled new Republican John B. Connally from private life to be a special adviser and named CIA Director James R. Schlesinger as secretary of defense.

As this was happening, evicted White House lawyer John W. Dean III charged someone is out to keep him from telling the full truth about Watergate and attempts to cover up the scandal. He said there are efforts to discredit what he has to say.

John N. Mitchell, who headed the re-election campaign until two weeks after the Watergate break-in, and Maurice H. Stans, the campaign's chief fund raiser, were charged with conspiring to arrange a secret $200,000 contribution to the election effort.

Also indicted by the grand jury in New York were a New Jersey Republican leader, Harry L. Sears, and Robert L. Vesco, former board chairman of International Controls Corp., who made the donation.

"There has been no wrongdoing on my part," said Mitchell, once Nixon's close associate and law partner. "I am certain that the judicial proceedings in this case will fully vindicate and confirm the absence of any wrongdoing."

Mitchell, who arrived at the Capitol to be questioned by Senate investigators Thursday afternoon, said the indictment was "one of the most irresponsible acts I ever heard of coming out of the Justice Department" which he formerly headed.

Both he and Stans also issued statements through the Nixon campaign committee.

Stans, budget director under President Dwight D. Eisenhower and before that a deputy postmaster general, had been Nixon's chief fund raiser in the 1968 campaign also.

"I am greatly dismayed by the action of the grand jury," he said in denying any wrongdoing. "I expect that when all the facts are heard I will be vindicated."

Ironically, during their government service, both men lived in the Watergate apartment-office complex with their families.

There was no comment from the White House on the indictments.

In his move to the Pentagon, Schlesinger would succeed Elliot L. Richardson who is undergoing Senate confirmation hearings for attorney general. Richard G. Kleindienst, Mitchell's successor in that post, resigned because of close personal and official associations with Watergate figures.

Nixon named William E. Colby to replace Schlesinger as head of the CIA. Pentagon general counsel J. Fred Buzhardt Jr. was appointed as a special counsel in the White House with "full responsibility in matters relating to the Watergate investigation."

The shuffling followed by 10 days the resignation of Nixon's closest aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, as chief of staff and domestic assistant to the White House.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, in announcing the shifts and Connally's return as a part-time, unpaid adviser, said Nixon intends to maintain more direct communication with his Cabinet. The President informed the Cabinet about the changes before making them public.

Top Democratic leaders of both the House and Senate led the drive against the spending authority, contending it might be construed not only as Congress' sanction for the bombing but for any other future U.S. military action taken in an effort to force compliance with the Jan. 27 Vietnam cease-fire.

He said the additional spending authority is needed to cover U.S. defense costs worldwide through June 30 and if Congress denied it, cuts would be taken out of programs other than the war operations.

Both sides had expected the balloting to be close.

"When it's this close you can't forecast the outcome," said House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who wanted House support for the bombing.

Republican Conference Chairman John B. Anderson of Illinois said he was among past supporters of Presidents' war policies who turned against the bombing after "intensive soul searching."

"You cannot create the structure of peace with a rain of falling bombs," Anderson said in opening House debate.

At issue was authority in a $2.8 billion supplemental money bill to transfer $430 million for defense spending, including at least $175 million for the bombing and other Indochina activities.

The vote was 219 to 188.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson said the bombing effort to force a Cambodia cease-fire would not be obstructed by congressional rejection of the transfer authority.

The vote marked the first antiwar measure passed by the House during the Indochina conflict.

News Council can fill a needed role

The formation of a National News Council, announced Tuesday, can be good or bad news, depending upon one's point of view.

Composed of 15 members, nine of which are "public," with six from the media, the council's role will be to investigate complaints regarding accuracy and fairness of news coverage by news suppliers that operate nationally in scope (wire services, radio and television networks, selected national news publications).

The council also will examine and report on what it sees as threats to freedom of the press. It will be totally independent of government, receiving its funding from a consortium of private foundations, and will have no punitive powers other than the right to publicly reveal its findings.

Some respected segments of the American press view with alarm the creation of a National News Council; others have said they will not cooperate with it. The feeling seems to be that no matter how worthy its intentions, the council will have the effect of "taming" the press and infringing upon its constitutional freedoms.

There may well be some grounds for these fears, but we are willing to give the National News Council a try. If it works to the benefit of both the public and the media, so much the better. If it fails, or, as seems more likely, lapses into irrelevancy, then what has been lost?

We definitely need to try something, since for some years now it has been evident that all is not well between the American people and their press. Recent polls have shown that the public holds the news media in rather low esteem; this loss of confidence does not augur well for our democratic institutions.

If the National Press Council can serve as a forum to promote understanding between a free press and a free people, then it will serve an important purpose.

Richard the Third in modern version

WASHINGTON — The setting is the palace at Key Biscayne where Richard III has retired to contemplate his next move.

(Enter the Duke of Ziegler.)

Ziegler: My Lord . . .

Richard: Good news or bad news that thou com'st in so bluntly?

Ziegler: Bad news, my Lord. Dean has fled to Maryland; Magruder sings in Virginia, and the palace guard is confessing in chorus.

Richard: Zounds! I cannot tell if to depart in silence, or bitterly to speak in gross reproof. Yet so much is my poverty of spirit, so mighty and so many my defects, that I would rather hide me from my greatness. What say the citizens, dear Ziegler?

Ziegler: The citizens are mum, my Lord, except for those who would impeach thy motives at the Watergate.

Richard: They do my wrong and I will not endure it! Who is it that complains unto the king that I forsooth am stern and love them not? By the Holy Graham, they love his grace but lightly that fill his ears with such dissentious rumors. A plague upon them all!

Ziegler: What shall I tell the citizens, my Lord?

Richard: Since you will buckle fortune on my back, to bear her burden, wh' I will or no, I must have patience to endure the load; but if black scandal or foul-faced reproach attend the sequel of this sordid affair, your mere enforcement shall acquit me from all the impure blots and stains thereof.

Ziegler: I will say, my Lord, you have no comment. (He exits.)

(Enter Baron Ehrlichman and Baron Haldeman, guarded by a lieutenant from the tower.)

Ehrlichman: My Lord, we must depart perforce. Farewell.

Haldeman: And to that end we wish your Lordship here t' avoid the censures of the caring world.

Richard: Well, your imprisonment shall not be long; I will deliver you or else lie for you. Meantime have patience. Now I'll strive with troubled thoughts to take a nap, lest leaden slumber peise me down tomorrow. Farewell, dear Haldeman and Ehrlichman, you served me well, though you cannot serve me last.

(Ehrlichman and Haldeman exit. Richard goes to sleep.)

(Enter the ghost of the Earl of Muskie.)

Ghost of Muskie: Let me sit heavy on thy soul. Think how thou stab'd me in the prime of my career, at Manchester and other places too long to mention. Be cheerful, Richard, I shall forget you not.

(Enter the Ghost of McGovern of Dakota.)

Ghost of McGovern: When I was mortal, by thee my anointed campaign was punched full of deadly holes. Think of me, dear Richard, virtuous and holy, when justice yields its blade. Live and flourish!

(The ghosts vanish. Richard starts out of his dream.)

Richard: Alas, I am a villain. Yet I lie I am not. My conscience hath a thousand several tongues and every tongue brings in a several tale. And every tale condemns me for a villain. Perjury, perjury in the highest degree!

(Enter the Duke of Rebozo.)

Richard: A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!

Rebozo: Withdraw, my Lord. I will help you to a horse.

Richard: Slave, I have set my life upon a cast, and I will stand the hazard of the die. I have slain six crises in the past. Today shall be my seventh. A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!

(Enter a messenger.)

Messenger: My gracious Sovereign . . .

Richard: Out with it! What bad news now?

Messenger: The Duchess of Mitchell has called for your head.

Richard: Zounds! By all that is holy, this plot has gone too far!

The odor arising from the Pearl river, and which greets the olfactory of the Ohio street wayfarer, is not calculated to remind one of orange and magnolia groves when in full bloom. Nay, verily; but on the contrary, the uninitiated is liable to be impressed with the idea that a Limburger cheese manufactory is running in full blast, under double pressure, somewhere near the rear of the Postoffice building.

A conservative view

Is OTA a lobby for left?

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

It drew very little attention when it came into being last October, but Sen. Edward Kennedy's new Office of Technology Assessment now is triggering alarm bells on Capitol Hill. Conservatives in both parties are wondering if they have created, in a fit of absentmindedness, a tax-paid lobby for liberal causes.

 Kilpatrick Thus far the OTA exists mainly on paper. It seems to be generally understood that $5 million will be sought for its operations in the 1973-74 fiscal year. But no funds have yet been authorized or appropriated. Hearings on the request have not been scheduled, but can be expected later this month.

The embarrassing truth, sad to say, is that we watchdogs of the press must have been baying on other trails when the "Technology Assessment Act of 1972" became law on Oct. 13. The presidential campaign was then at full speed. Negotiations with the North Vietnamese were much in the news. The House and Senate were crunching toward adjournment, gobbling down bills as fast as the yeas and nays could be ordered. Most of us missed this act altogether.

On paper, the idea of an Office of Technology Assessment has a plausible appeal. Only a handful of congressmen have professional training in science. Most members sit in numb silence when the bureaucracy sends witnesses to testify on space exploration, weapons systems, medical research and the like. The staffs of standing committees have developed some expertise in these arcane fields, but they generally are overworked and ill-equipped for full-blown research.

In an effort to close the ignorance gap, Senator Kennedy — and others — thought up the OTA. The office would provide the Congress with "competent, unbiased information concerning the physical, biological, economic, social, and political effects" of technological proposals. The office would not wait upon the introduction of bills. It would seek to anticipate technological areas of probable legislative activity, in order to keep Congress informed on the impact, for example, of new pesticides or super-tankers.

So far, so good. But it is apparent, on a close reading of the act, that the OTA has virtually unlimited jurisdiction. It can initiate studies on any matter under moon or sun. It can explore fields of legislative concern that in the past have been the property of 39 committees and subcommittees and four joint committees. All that is required is that OTA's board direct that a study be made.

The board is to consist of six senators and six representatives. In odd-numbered Congresses, the chairman will come from the Senate, in even-numbered Congresses the House. Senator Kennedy has been named as the board's first chairman.

The Senate contingent includes, in addition to Kennedy, three other certified liberals (Case of New Jersey, Humphrey of Minnesota, and Schweiker of Pennsylvania), one moderate (Hollings of South Carolina) and one conservative (Dominick of Colorado). The House contingent is somewhat better balanced, but the bias of the policy-making board, charged with preparing these unbiased reports, is as plain as the tilt of the Tower of Pisa.

As newsmen have begun belatedly to ask questions, some familiar names have cropped up. Kennedy's choice for a full-time $40,000 director reportedly is Emilio Daddario, former Connecticut congressman, a consistent dove on defense legislation. An OTA advisory council, in addition to Kennedy, three other certified liberals (Case of New Jersey, Humphrey of Minnesota, and Schweiker of Pennsylvania), one moderate (Hollings of South Carolina) and one conservative (Dominick of Colorado). The House contingent is somewhat better balanced, but the bias of the policy-making board, charged with preparing these unbiased reports, is as plain as the tilt of the Tower of Pisa.

One hopes not to be paranoid about these things. A truly unbiased Office of Technology Assessment, operating with the professional neutrality of the General Accounting Office, could perform a useful service. But an OTA that functioned chiefly as a liberal lobby, fluttering over every doves and do-gooder cause that comes along, would be hard to take. We have quite enough of these as it is.

The Hitler government protests that it has not been doing what the foreign press says it has been doing . . . The German newspapers are no witnesses; they are muzzled . . . Stories of Nazi outrages are not out of the whole cloth; they are based on truth. Since the Hitler government operates a strict censorship, news made in Germany must be taken with much salt. The world cannot learn the whole truth in Germany when available reports are pre-digested.

Dean implicated in ITT coverup

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — We now have evidence that ex-White House counsel John Dean directed not only the Watergate cover-up but the earlier ITT cover-up as well. In both cases, he obstructed investigators, suppressed evidence and tried to influence the testimony.

Here's what we have now learned about his ITT operation:

During the ITT hearings, he would slip up to Capitol Hill and operate out of Vice President Agnew's office. On one occasion, Dean phoned the Senate Judiciary Committee and asked a secretary to deliver a message to attorney Edward P. Taptich. The lawyer, formerly associated in the same law firm with Dean, represented ITT consultant Jack Gleason, who had been called to testify. The secretary handed Taptich a note, asking him to contact Dean in the vice president's office.

In these August quarters, the two men discussed what Gleason might be asked on the witness stand. Then Taptich huddled with his client before the testimony.

As part of our case against ITT, we turned over to the Senate the celebrated Dita Beard memo, which linked the settlement of ITT's antitrust troubles with a $400,000 commitment to help finance the Republican convention. The Senate asked the FBI to determine whether the memo was a forgery and got back a report that it was written on Dita Beard's typewriter with the ribbon she was using on the day it was dated.

But unknown to the senators, Dean asked acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray for the memo. Not long after Gray delivered the memo to Dean, it was sneaked to ITT which hired its own experts to try to prove it was a forgery.

Howard Hunt, who earlier burglarized the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and later helped plot the Watergate break-in, was also assigned to the ITT case. He reported that Dita Beard had fabricated her memo to blackmail her bosses.

White House aide Charles Colson dispatched Hunt, wearing a preposterous red wig, to Denver with a message for Dita Beard that it would not be held against her if she would confess the alleged forgery. But the indomitable Dita insisted to Hunt that the memo was authentic. It came as a total surprise to the White House when she later hedged.

Articles degrading to the President

You have recently headlined articles which were, in effect, downgrading to our President of the United States. You surely knew these would arouse the ire of many Sedilians. I have the faith that many citizens are not of the heartless sort. What do doubt and condemnation accomplish? Such a lack of trust only places a heavy burden upon the person who is attacked. It brings him sorrow and disappointment, thereby weakening his efforts to a certain extent.

Constructive forces move forward on trust and co-operation. Do some citizens wish to weaken the foundations of our nation by creating dissension and distrust? Can the critics appreciate the President's prayer, "God bless America, and each one of you"? Do they have the love and humility to pray for blessings upon a President who obviously is seeking to make the right decisions?

Billy Graham, whom I believe to be the greatest non-denominational evangelist of all time, says President Nixon has his prayers. President Nixon explained that he was putting his country ahead of politics when he delegated authority to others during his last campaign, while his attention was centered upon attaining his greatest goal: that of world peace. He said he was led to believe certain things by those in whom he placed trust. Being great himself, he did not doubt his friends.

The image of the disgruntled Democrats who chose the wrong candidate is not enhanced by their trying to dishonor ALL the highest officials of the party in power. I am not inferring that they may not someday produce a worthy candidate who is great enough to put country before politics.

I honor President Nixon as a great man who is successfully shouldering enormous world-wide responsibilities.

Hoping you will maintain an unbiased policy in your publications of opinions.

The declarer has most of the advantage in play, but not all. He can't look into his opponents' hands and see how suits are going to break.

West opens the king of diamonds and continues with the queen. South wins that second lead and plays a spade to dummy's jack. East wins with the queen and leads back the nine of clubs, which is taken by South's ace.

South leads a second spade and West takes his ace since it is pointless to hold off.

At this point some West players would lead a club on the theory that they didn't want to set up South's nine of diamonds. Others would cash the 10 of diamonds and give up.

A West player worth his salt will lead the 10 and another diamond and look forward to some chance of beating the game contract.

They will know that South is not looking at their cards. South can't be sure that the 10 of spades is going to fall and if South doesn't have the queen of hearts in his hand South is very likely to discard two spades from dummy on those two diamonds and rely on the heart finesse for his ninth trick.

Maybe he won't but any chance is better than no chance, and this play does give the defense that chance.

McCord

Reveals

Wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator James W. McCord says he was told logs of wiretapped conversations were delivered to John W. Mitchell while he was President Nixon's campaign director, court papers showed Thursday.

McCord also said in a pretrial statement taken under oath April 30 and May 1, that he was told Mitchell urged the Watergate bugging crew to get into operation as quickly as possible.

The information in both cases, McCord testified, came from G. Gordon Liddy, another convicted Watergate figure who was boss of the crew that entered and bugged Democratic Party headquarters over the Memorial weekend last year.

He said Liddy also told him that an espionage budget of $50,000 had been approved by White House counsel John W. Dean III and former Atty. Gen. Mitchell and that another $100,000 was available.

Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans were indicted Thursday to another three-year term as a road commissioner for Pettis County on the State Highway Commission.

Western District Judge John Bluhm Jr., said the four commissioners make recommendations to the State Highway Commission for improvements on state-maintained roads in the county.

The other three commissioners are Clarence Purchase, Green Ridge; James Higgins, Houstonia; and Kalo Monsees, Smithton.

"I haven't finished my investigation yet," he told The Associated Press. "It will be complete within the next several days. I will have a statement after that."

Mrs. Long told newsmen at the Hannibal hospital where the autopsy findings were disclosed that she was "quite relieved to learn that Ed died of natural causes."

"I never could have rested for the rest of my days if I had thought there had been any foul play," Mrs. Long said.

Commissioner Is Given Another Term

Frank Van Dyke, Smithton, was appointed by the Pettis County Court Thursday to another three-year term as a road commissioner for Pettis County on the State Highway Commission.

Western District Judge John Bluhm Jr., said the four commissioners make recommendations to the State Highway Commission for improvements on state-maintained roads in the county.

The other three commissioners are Clarence Purchase, Green Ridge; James Higgins, Houstonia; and Kalo Monsees, Smithton.

Fires Do $400 In Damage Here

Sedalia firemen responded to two fires Wednesday evening and Thursday morning.

A fire at 10:43 a.m. Thursday at 618 North Moniteau resulted in $300 damage to a home owned and occupied by Jennie Jenkins. The fire was attributed to defective wiring.

A blaze at 10:48 p.m. Wednesday resulted in $100 damages to a car parked at 12th and Ohio. The fire in the car, owned by Tom Meyer, address not given, was also believed caused by defective wiring.

House Is Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Thursday passed a measure interpreted as opposing continued U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

It approved an amendment by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., denying President Nixon's $430 million-defense spending transfer request, including at least $175 million for the bombing and other Indochina activities.

The vote was 219 to 188.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson has said the bombing effort to force a Cambodian cease-fire would not be obstructed by congressional rejection of the transfer authority.

The vote marked the first antiwar measure passed by the House during the Indochina conflict.

Warns Against Future Pet Poisonings Here

Confronted with the report of a third animal poisoned in the same Sedalia area, Police Chief William Miller Thursday morning warned that poisoning pets is a graded felony and can result, upon conviction, in jail sentences ranging from 6 months to 3 years, plus a $250 fine.

"An animal doesn't have to die for the act to be a graded felony," Miller said. State statutes say that any person "who... maliciously and willfully administers any poison" to any domestic animal can be fined $250, given six months in the county jail or three years in the state penitentiary.

Miller said strichnine is found in some forms of rat poison. However, most poisons of this nature no longer contain strichnine, he said, but the fatal substance can still be obtained. Usually, if purchased from a reputable druggist, a permit must be signed by the buyer, Miller said.

"We'll be checking the drug stores to see if anyone has ordered or purchased strichnine," he said, indicating police would also check the area where the Lightfoot family lives.

A report that a fourth animal was acting strangely — in a way similar to that of the Lightfoot dog before it died — could not be immediately confirmed.

Mrs. Lightfoot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coats, 1223 East Ninth, are offering a $200 reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of anyone caught poisoning dogs.

Man Is Charged With Cat Killing

A misdemeanor charge of maliciously killing a dumb animal, a cat, was filed by Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming Wednesday afternoon against a rural Sedalia man.

The petition alleges that William E. Dey, J and H Trailer Court, South Highway 65, shot and killed a pet cat May 6 owned by Donald A. DeWinter, also of the trailer court.

Guns Are Stolen From Sedalia Home

William E. Jeffries, 731 East Fifth, told Sedalia police at 2:05 a.m. Thursday that someone had stolen two shotguns and a German Luger handgun, collectively valued at $145, from his home sometime Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Jeffries told police he discovered the theft when he returned to his home around 2 a.m. Thursday.

Theft at LaMonte Bank Not Solved

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LaMONT — The thieves who took an estimated $20,000 March 2 from the Community Bank here have not been apprehended, Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Thursday.

"There have been no new leads, no developments," Fairfax said.

The sheriff indicated that agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are continuing the investigation. Fairfax said he is contacted by the FBI about once a week and "so far they (FBI) haven't come up with anything."

The burglars reportedly forced a door and used an acetylene torch to burn a hole in the safe and vault door.
